IN THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE

Proceedings of the January Term of Court.

MANY CASES DISPOSED OF

Opened Monday Morning at 10 O'clock with Judge Love on the Bench—C. W. Smith of Patton Township Foreman of Grand Jury.

COURT SESSIONS WELL ATTENDED

Specially reported by W. Harrison Walker, Esq.

The regular term of January Court began Monday morning at 10 o'clock, with Hon. John G. Love, President Judge, on the bench.

There were quite a number of civil cases in the nature of appeals from the decisions of Justices and several important criminal cases on the list.

The entire morning session was taken up in the hearing of motions and petitions in the several courts, presented by the different members of the bar.

W. H. Faries, Esq., of Sunbury, Pa., is stenographer for this term of Court.

The list of Grand Jurors was then called by Prothonotary Gardner and C. W. Smith, farmer from Patton township, was selected "foreman."

After receiving the usual explanatory and instructive charge by the Court, they retired to consider the bills of indictment presented to them by District Attorney Spangler.

The constables of the several boroughs and townships then made their quarterly returns to the Court of Quarter Sessions.

The Court then called over the civil cases on the first week's list and disposition was made of the following cases:

John Zentmyer, use of P. B. Zentmyer, vs. Frank L. Black. Appeal Plea, non assumpsit. Case settled by parties, costs paid and record satisfied.

Philip Leister vs. E. M. Huyett, appeal. Plea, non assumpsit. On motion of defendant's attorney the case was continued on account of the illness of Mr. Huyett.

In the case of Commonwealth vs. Chas. Stover. Charge, f. and b. Prosecutrix, Sadie Lutz. Grand Jury ignored the bill of indictment and imposed the costs upon the county.

Commonwealth vs. James Zang. Charge, larceny. Prosecutor, James Schofield. Bill ignored and costs to be paid by prosecutor.

Commonwealth vs. E. C. Smith Charge, 1st count, "threatening letters," 2nd count, "Blackmail," Prosecutor, C. H. Morris. Bill ignored and prosecutor, C. H. Morris, ordered to pay the costs of prosecution.

Commonwealth vs. Parmer Hetzel and Jacob Wetzel. Charge, larceny. Prosecutor, John Maize. Defendant, Parmer Hetzel, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5.00, costs of prosecution, restore property, if not already restored and undergo imprisonment in the jail of Centre county for a period of twenty days.

Commonwealth vs. Parmer Hetzel and Jacob Wetzel. Charge, larceny. Prosecutor, Lewis Fausler. Bill ignored and county directed to pay the costs of prosecution.

Commonwealth vs. Emory S. Beals. Charge, f. and b. Prosecutrix, Marcella Straw. Defendant entered his plea of guilty, and received the usual sentence by the Court.

In the case of H. P. Harris vs. John H. Hines, the Court entered judgment in favor of plaintiff and against the defendant for the sum of $64.18, being the amount due in full to plaintiff.

In the case of the National Computing Scale Co., vs. F. B. Stover, being an appeal the Court granted a continuance by consent of counsel.

Sallie A Meek vs. The school Dist. of Halfmoon Twp.

This was an action to recover the sum of $25,00 and Int. for a school order insued in 1882 by the Defendant District to the plaintiff. The verdict by order of the Court was for the Defendant. It was announced in open Court by Counsel for Defendant as well as by the Court that the paintiff refused to compromise this case for the face value of the order and costs which offer was made prior to the trial and during the course of the same.

Harrisburg Patriot Office Destroyed by Fire.

As we are going to press we ascertain that the Harrisburg Patriot office is on fire with total destruction in sight.

STARTLING SUICIDE.

William Kerr a Well-to-Do Farmer of Centre Hill Hanged Himself.

A telephone dispatch received Friday afternoon from Potter's Mills announces the sad fact that William Kerr a prominent citizen and well-to-do farmer of Centre Hill had committed suicide. He went to the barn Friday morning to do some chores and his prolonged absence caused his wife to become worried who on going in search of him was horrified to find him hanging in the corn crib, quite dead. No motive can be given for the rash act as he was in apparent good health and prosperous.

He was about 54 years of age and leaves a wife and three children. The childrens names are Roland, of Chicago, Ill.; Catherine, at school at Carlisle; and Willie at home.

The funeral took place Monday morning fron his late home. Interment at Spruce town cemetery.

Crystal Wedding.

A very happy anniversary of the fifteenth wedding day was duly celebrated at Parvin Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Will Knecht. There was an assemblage present of friends and kindred from Bellefonte, Williamsport, Lock Haven and vicinity. The good wishes of the friends were expressed by the presentation of beautiful gifts. A fine dinner was served, to which all did ample justice. Music was enjoyed, after which the pastor, Rev. James Runkle, read an appropriate scripture lesson and led in an impressive prayer. The service closed by the little daughter Mable playing the piano accompaniment to "Home Sweet Home," in which all united in singing. May many anniversaries be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Knecht.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Against Traction Company.

Lee A. and Mary S. Kambeitz received a verdict for $8,000 Monday, from the Dauphin county jury, which tried a damage case at Harrisburg. Mrs. Kambeitz was injured last August while attempting to get off a trolley car in that city, and to save her life her leg had to be amputated. The plea was set up that the car was going when she sustained her injury. Her husband sued for damages on the ground that he lost his wife's services, which he valued at $12 a week. He was given a verdict for $200, and Mrs. Kambeitz for $7,800. The Harrisburg Traction Company, the defendant, has moved for a new trial.

Millheims Aged People.

Millheim has quite a number of aged people as the following list will testify.

Mrs. Jacob Gephart, 70; John Stoner, 78; George Peters, 80; Mrs. Michael Smith, 76; Mrs. Katie Fowler, 80; Mrs. Reuben Hartman, 75; Miss Lydia Musser, 72, Mrs. D. A. Musser, 74; Mrs. Thomas Frank, 74; Mrs. Maria Weaver 73, Mrs. Rebecca Musser, 71; Mrs. Peter Confer, 71; Ilgen Musser, 70; Jacob Eisenhuth, 73; Mrs. Jacob Eisenhuth, 71; Polly Keen, 76; Mrs. Henney, 70; Fred Catherman, 75; Joseph Cantner, 75.

Not Held Responsible.

The Ohio supreme court has handed down a decision to the effect that railroads are not liable to fire damages resulting from locomotive sparks, provided it can be established that due care has been exercised on the railroad in the handling of the engine. Heretofore it has been necessary for the railroads to prove that a fire occurring within a quarter of a mile of a railroad was not caused by locomotive sparks. A stack of grain or hay located anywhere near a railroad might be set on fire by a tramp, but the railroad would have to pay for it.

Spring Mills K. of G. E. Elect Officers.

Centre Castle, No. 169, K. of G. E. located at Spring Mills, has elected and installed the following officers: Noble Chief, William Alexander; Vice Chief, J. A. Grenoble, Esq; Master of Records, P. W. Leitzell; Sir Herald, John Zerby; Clerk of Exchequer, R. U. Bitner; Keeper of Exchequer, J. I. Condo; High Priest, Henry H. Emerick; Venerable Hermit, D. Burrell, Representative to Grand Castle, P. W. Leitzell, Sitting Past Chief, W. H. Smith.

William B. Eckley, an aged resident of Spring twp., died Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, of Bright's disease. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Rolley Miller, of Bellefonte. The funeral will occur from the late residence of the deceased on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in the family lot in the Union Cemetery, Bellefonte.

"MEANING OF REGULARITY"

Quay Machine's Example of Trying to Get Democratic Votes.

REPUBLICANS REMEMBER THIS

THE QUAY LINES WAVERING

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Harrisburg, Jan. 23.—There have been several sensations in Washington during the past week in connection with M. S. Quay's attempt to break into the United States senate with Governor Stone's assistance. The principal was the attempt of Quay to join forces with the Democratic senator, Clark, of Montana, who is undergoing investigation for the most flagrant case of bribery, according to the evidence, ever presented to any legislative body. Mr. Quay is in need of at least eight votes to secure his seat in the senate. His attempted deal with Clark, of Montana, was to this effect: That if Clark would agree to give Quay a certain number of Democratic votes to help elect him Quay in return would give the Democrat a certain number of Republican votes from among the men who are Quay's particular cronies and who would not hesitate to vote for anything or anybody to get Mr. Quay back in the senate.

But the newspaper correspondents in Washington got on to the scheme and published it broadcast. It put a damper on the Quay plan and hurt Clark's chances among certain Republicans who might have felt disposed to vote for him. But it is a singular thing that Clark, of Montana, who is being investigated by a senate committee and who, men have sworn, gave $10,000 a head for votes, should join forces with Quay, Republican from Pennsylvania, several of whose warm personal friends are out on bail in Pennsylvania waiting trial for offering $5,000 a head for votes.

Mr. Quay is setting a very bad example before the independent thinking Republicans of Pennsylvania by thus dickering for Democratic votes to help him out. His machine and his shouters in Pennsylvania are going to make their campaign this year on the "regularity" platform. They are going to denounce the anti-Quay Republicans for joining forces with Democrats who believe in beating Quay, and brand them as kickers and "irregular." That is what they will do in Pennsylvania while all the time in Washington Quay is straining every nerve to make deals with Democrats for votes and thus save himself from political oblivion. If Quay's case is clear, and the Republican party is so much in love with him as his friends try to make out, it is remarkable that he should have to go down on his knees, metaphorically, to beg Democratic votes and assistance.

It is well for Republicans who think for themselves to bear these things in mind. The Quay machine is always "regular" when it is not irregular. When it suits its purpose to buy or trade Democratic votes, as it did in Philadelphia three years ago, when it made a deal with Democrats which cost McKinley 30,000 votes, it does not hesitate to get them. It is a notorious fact that Quay controls the Democratic vote in Philadelphia through his lieutenants, and yet all the time his shouters and mouthpieces go up and down the state crying aloud for "regularity" and demanding that Republicans stick to the party, which of course means sticking to Quay.

But the Republicans who are Republicans are not being deceived by any such claptrap. They have defeated Quay and they are going to see that he stays defeated. And if it is necessary to call in the aid of all honest men irrespective of party to keep the machine under control and keep Quay out of the senate they are more than likely to do it.

Every trust and monopoly in the United States is working tooth and toenail to seat Quay. The Philadelphia North American, in one of its Washington dispatches on Thursday last, said:

"The Standard Oil company is not the only corporation which has its agents scurrying about Washington trying to drum up enough votes to land Mr. Quay in the United States senate. That company's emissaries are active enough, but there are others representing scarcely less wealthy and influential interests who haunt the corridors of the Capitol, the Pullman Palace Car company being one of those that have joined hands with Standard Oil crowd in the prosecution of this end.

"One senator said today that the pressure that is being brought to bear upon wavering members of the upper house of congress was something terrific, but that so far little progress has been made by the corporation agents "in the enemy's country."

This is interesting news for farmers and the plain people of the state. It was only a couple of years ago that Mr. Quay was parading himself before them as "the man in the blouse," who was asking all other men in blouses to vote for him. That was before he had shaken the plum tree. Today Quay is the friend of corporations, as he has always been. The reason the Standard Oil company and the Sugar trust and all the other trusts are for Quay is because he has been of use to them, and will continue to be of use to them if he gets back into the senate. The following extract from a leading Republican newspaper briefly describes the situation in Washington last week:

"The Quay lines are wavering. No one knows this better than Quay himself. Rendered desperate by the situation, he has urged his henchmen to greater effort, and they have responded with alacrity. Around Washington they go dashing in carriages, paid for out of the funds of the corporations that are making the fight for Quay, looking up this man and that who may possibly have some influence with those senators who have the hardihood to hold out in the cause of decency against those who would force Quay into a senatorial seat in defiance of public sentiment and in violation of the constitution."

Sons of Veterans Banquet.

The Penns valley Camp. No. 318, Div. of Penn'a., Sons of Veterans, held their annual banquet in the Town Hall, at Spring Mills, Pa., on the evening of January 12th, 1900. They, with their ladies, entertained all the veterans of the Civil and Spano-American Wars, their ladies and parents and also the widows of the deceased veterans.

An elaborate and substantial supper was served, consisting of oysters, turkey, chicken, cold meats, cakes and all the accessory articles which tend to make a complete feast. As special entertainment, the Spring Mills Male Quartette, with their pianoist, furnished appropriate and delightful music, and the well known elocutionist, Mrs. DeWuddie, of Centre Hall, assisted by Miss M. Helen Bartholomew, of the same place, favored the audience with many entertaining, amusing and instructive orations. During the Camp Fire that followed the supper, the veterans told many "old war stories" and spoke very freely of the courtesy and kindness shown them by the Sons of Veterans. About 80 individuals were in attendance, and all say they had an enjoyable time.

Capt. W. S. Musser was "master of ceremonies" and Chaplain, J. V. Royer delivered the address of welcome.

Hints For Tea-Drinkers.

French tea is a popular drink, and is made in this wise: Take four teaspoonfuls of tea, four cups of boiling water and one square of cut sugar. Steep five to eight minutes and serve without cream or sugar.

A Dr. Johnson cup of tea is made by pulverizing the tea leaves and moistening them with cold water. Let it stand for fifteen minutes; add boiling water and serve at once with cream and sugar.

Tea a la Dewey is, of course, the latest. Take the juice of three lemons, three oranges, one pineapple, shredded or grated, a wineglassful of preserved cherries, one tablespoonful of Ceylon tea, and pour over all one quart of boiling water. Steep for fifteen minutes before serving.

How Advertising Helps.

When an agent goes to a man and says: "I am representing the Bac Action Check Row Corn Planter people." that man says: "Yes I see it advertised in a paper I take, an' was a-wondering what it looked like an' how the thing worked," a sale is half made. All the agent has to do is to take out his catalogue and show the farmer where it is better and cheaper than any other corn planter on earth and he gets him. The agent who strikes a man who never heard of his machine has a hard row to hoe. He must tell where it is made, and after he is done the farmer will tell him he "wuz" a-thinkin' of gettin' one he seen advertised in the paper."—Agricultural Advertising.

Defaulting Jobber.

The men employed by Johnson and Hollowell, at Troutsville, log jobbers for Chas. Weis of Williamsport had a sad experience recently. Chas. Johnson one of jobbers went to Big Run recently as usual and drew the December pay for the men, but instead of going to camp to distribute the money he took French leave and no one knows his whereabouts. The supposition is that he went to the state of Washington where several of his brothers are lumbering.

Shipments to India.

Sixty-one carloads of steel are to be shipped from this country to India at an early date, and the metal will be used there in constructing bridges. America leads the world not only in the construction of bridges, but in the manufacture of bridge material. There is now scarcely any part of the world where these facts are not known, and the steadily increasing export of this class of merchandise indicates that these facts are appreciated.

THE MORMONITE AT BAY

B. H. Roberts Argues Against Exclusion From the House.

WOMEN AUDITORS APPLAUDED

Other Women, However, Manifested Bitter Hostility by Hissing at Him at Every Opportunity.

THE DEBATE WILL CLOSE TODAY

Washington, Jan. 24.—Yesterday was an oratorical field day in the house over the case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon representative from Utah. The galleries were packed to suffocation, chiefly with women, and the spectators, after listening attentively to the arguments of Mr. Tayler, of Ohio, and Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, for the adoption of the majority and minority reports, respectively, of the special committee that investigated the case, remained long after nightfall to hear the impassioned words of the accused as he faced the house, like an animal at bay, knowing that every hand was raised against him. Mr. Roberts was very adroit in the handling of his case and at times exceedingly dramatic.

Taking advantage of the issue raised by the division in the committee as to the method of ousting him, he appropriated to himself the argument of the minority that he was constitutionally entitled to be sworn in and the argument of the majority that, once sworn in, he could not be expelled. He defended the action of the Mormons in fighting the authority of the United States for years, because, he said, they believed that sentiment would change, and dramatically stated that in those days he had rather have his flesh hewn from his bones than have renounced his religious tenets. He concluded with an eloquent peroration in which he said he had never been conscious of a shameful act, and if he was sent forth he would go with head erect and undaunted brow. Strange to say, most of the applause he won was from women. But while they appeared to be his only partisans, other women manifested their bitter hostility by hissing him at every opportunity.

The speech made by Mr. Littlefield, who succeeds the late Mr. Dingley, in defense of the minority proposition to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts was a masterful effort and stamped him as one of the coming men in the house. The manner in which he tore some of the arguments of the majority into shreds jumped him into the front rank of debaters in the house. The speech made a deep impression. In fact, it is predicted by many members that the majority resolution for exclusion cannot now carry.

Mr. Lacy, of Iowa, has a proposition which he will submit to expel Mr. Roberts by two-thirds vote, without seating him, which will have supporters, and this may lead to a compromise proposition.

Miss Roberts, daughter of Mr. Roberts, was in the reserved gallery throughout the debate. The debate will close tomorrow at 4:30.

Again yesterday the senate's session was devoted entirely to speechmaking. Mr. Turner (Wash.) concluded his address upon the Philippine question. He was followed by Mr. Ross (Vt.) with a thoughtful and carefully prepared speech, in which he also discussed the Philippine question in connection with resolutions which he had offered. Mr. McEnery (La.) delivered the concluding speech of the session on the race question in the south. He took strong ground in support of the constitution of Louisiana and of the proposed amendment to the constitution of North Carolina, which it is alleged practically will disfranchise a large class of voters.

Proposed New Jersey Laws.

Trenton, Jan. 24.—The Republican senators held a caucus yesterday and agreed with the house caucus in the matter of supervisor of bills. The law will be repealed and each body will have its own supervisor and the rules will be changed to admit of the use of printed bills. The senate has adjourned to meet next week. There were 26 bills introduced in the house yesterday, among them: Exempting from taxation personal property and capital stock of domestic building and loan associations; placing a tax upon the gross receipts of telegraph, telephone, electric light, gas and trolley companies; making employers responsible for damages to employes where the injury results from carelessness of other employes; abolishing capital punishment.

Archbishop Nozaleda Hooted.

Manila, Jan. 24.—Archbishop Chapelle, papal delegate to the Philippines, gave a reception to the Catholic clergy and laymen for the purpose of conciliating the opposing factions. Many prominent Filipinos attended, with a view of making a demonstration against the friars. They hooted Archbishop Nozaleda and every friar who appeared. On the other hand General Otis, who attended with his staff, was cheered. Mgr. Chapelle made a speech, asking for toleration and patience and promising a satisfactory settlement of the questions in dispute.

COUNT CASTELLANE'S THREAT.

Will "Dignify" De Rodays by Striking Him With His Cane.

New York, Jan. 24.—Count Boni de Castellane visited Edwin Gould at the latter's office yesterday. They went out to luncheon and to the bicycle show in Madison Square Garden. Edwin Gould went with the count to the Waldorf-Astoria, and there greeted his sister, the countess, most affectionately. Last evening Mr. and Mrs. George Gould entertained Count and Countess de Castellane at dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, and later at a theater party, where they were joined by Helen Gould.

The count said last night:

"I read with much interest and considerable amusement the cablegram from Paris giving M. De Roday's answer to my criticisms of his libellous methods. He is afraid to make any manner of defense and so attempts to turn the public mind from his wrongdoings by calling upon the minister of finance to investigate my alleged speculations on the Bourse. That is idle folly, and he knows it. It is unprecedented. The minister of finance has better things to do than to follow the gossip of such canaille as M. De Rodays. I can add little to my remarks of yesterday concerning him. I repeat that upon my return to Paris I shall dignify him by condescending to strike him across the face with my cane."

Man Saved, Excitement Killed Wife.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 24.—Frank Carpenter, after being buried under the debris of a three story brick building yesterday, was rescued, but his wife died from the excitement caused by waiting for the firemen to get him from the ruins. Carpenter was buried in the cellar, with two heavy joists pinning him down, one across his chest and another across his abdomen. Above him were tons of brick, stone and iron work and an overhanging wall, but he was finally rescued and will live.

Omaha's Alleged "Boodlers."

Omaha, Jan. 24.—Frank A. Sears and George H. Ness, members of the board of education, had their preliminary hearing on the charge of receiving bribes in connection with the letting of contracts for school work. After the introduction of the evidence for the state the defendants declined to introduce any testimony. The county judge held them for trial under $1,000 bond each. Bond was given and the accused released. The case will be tried probably in February.

Altgeld Will Join Bryan.

Boston, Jan. 24.—The Democratic state committee has received a telegram from ex-Governor John P. Altgeld, of Illinois, accepting the invitation to take part in the reception to W. J. Bryan in this city on Tuesday next. It is expected Mr. Altgeld will join Mr. Bryan's party at Providence and come to Boston with the men who are to speak at the banquet in the afternoon at Faneuil Hall and at the mass meeting at Mechanics' Hall in the evening.

Bricklayers' New Wage Scale.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.—The joint conference committee of the Masters and Journeymen Bricklayers' associations met last night and decided on a new wage scale to go into effect May 1. Under the new agreement the journeymen will receive 50 cents an hour, instead of 45 cents, as at present. Eight hours will constitute a day's work, with four hours on Saturday. All overtime will be paid for at the rate of $1 per hour.

Death of Brigadier General Squires.

St. Louis, Jan. 24.—Brigadier General Charles W. Squires died suddenly at his home here yesterday. He was 60 years of age and leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter. General Squires commanded the famous Washington battery, of New Orleans, during the civil war. In later years he was a brigadier general of militia. He organized Battery A and commanded it during the riots of 1877 in St. Louis.

Steamer Sunk and Two Drowned.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 24.—The Glasgow steamer Ardandhu was sunk in collision with the Metropolitan liner Herman Winter off Robinson's Hole, Vineyard Sound, yesterday and two of the Ardandhu's crew of 31 men were lost. They were: Chief Engineer James Henderson, of Glasgow; Second Mate Fred Dowe, of Boston. The others were rescued by the Herman Winter's crew.

Still No Bodies From the Helgoland.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 24.—Another day has passed and no bodies have yet been recovered from the wreck of the steamer Helgoland in St. Mary's bay. The continued failure causes general regret. Yesterday the coast folk saw a number of bodies floating near the vessel. These they believe were brought up from the bottom by the cross current, due to a change in wind.

To Elect Senator White's Successor.

Sacramento, Jan. 24.—Governor H. T. Gage yesterday issued a proclamation calling for an extra session of the legislature to convene Jan. 29. The session is called for the purpose of elected a United States senator to succeed Stephen M. White, whose term has expired, and to enact necessary amendments to state laws. The last session failed to elect a successor to Senator White, owing to a prolonged deadlock. The membership is overwhelmingly Republican and it is certain that a Republican senator will be chosen in White's place.

Hummel's Babe Found.

The Williamsport Sun says: The body of the babe that was missing when the murdered bodies of Mrs. Hummel and her two children were discovered, has been found.

Ever since the finding of the three bodies the authorities of Lycoming county have been puzzled where to look for that of the babe. A search of the Hummel premises was made, but it availed nothing. Thursday the authorities received a letter from a party, whose name they would not disclose. This letter stated that the babe was buried in the stable, which stands about fifty yards south of the house occupied by the Hummels. The authorities went to Montgomery last night and about 1 o'clock they dug into the earth and found the body at the exact spot indicated in the letter.

The head of the child was crushed in, and there were other wounds on the body similar to the injuries that were inflicted on the bodies of the mother and other children.

The coroner's jury held an inquest and rendered a verdict, charging Hummel with the murder.

When Hummel was notified in jail of the discovory of the body, he professed ignorance and denied all knowledge of the crime.

Irvin Delaney Appointed Watchman at Lamb Street Crossing.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has finally decided to put a watchman at the Lamb street crossing near Gerberich's mill. A box will be built at once and Irvin Delaney will be brought from Mill Hall and placed in charge permanently. He is a superannuated division boss.

The position is now being filled temporarily by a brother of division boss Henry Runner, who will have charge until February 1st, when it is expected the watch box will be in position and Delaney will be on hand for duty.

This is a very commendable act on the part of Supt. Blair and the Railroad company and shows that they are ever watchful of the people's lives and property in the towns through which they pass.

Grain-O! Grain-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O is made of pure grain, it aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

A Highwayman Captured.

A lone highwayman Tuesday night held up Henry A. Mandeville, of Galeton, as he was on his way home from the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad shops, and robbed him of $150. He was able to give a good description, and the robber, after a two hours chase, and a desperate struggle in a thicket near Germania, was captured and lodged in jail at Coudersport.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET.

Held by the Improved Order of Heptasophs in Their Hall Thursday Evening.

The annual banquet of the Improved Order of Heptasophs, Conclave No 111 of Bellefonte, was held in their beautiful hall in the Eagle block Thursday evening and proved a splendid success in every particular. There were over one hundred guests present including the wives, sweet hearts and daughters of the members, whose presence on this occasion certainly added much to the enjoyment.

The banquet which began at 9 o'clock was conducted in an admirable manner. The committee in charge were G. W. Rees, chairman, H.H. Harshberger, L. H. Wian, J. S. McCarger and Thomas Shaughnessy Jr. The guests were received in the ante room in a cordial manner where they were relieved of their overcoats and wraps after which they were ushered in to the beautiful banquet hall, where all was light and joy.

The room was arranged with long tables literally groaning under the good things skillfully prepared by caterer C. F. Harrison, who fairly broke his record for this event. The guests sat down promptly at nine o'clock and for an hour and a half were kept busy discussing the good things before them.

At the end of the room an excellent orchestra under the leadership of that well known musician Christy Smith was seated and at intervals during the evening they discoursed the most exquisite music.

The feasting being over the toastmaster of the occasion, Mr. Hammond Sechler, rapped for order, and every one settled back to enjoy the intellectual part of the program. After a few introductory remarks the toastmaster proposed a toast to be drank standing by the gentlemen to "Our Guests" of the evening, the ladies. This was responded to in an eloquent address by Capt. Hugh S. Taylor, who paid a beautiful tribute to the women of our land. This was responded to on the part of the guests by Thomas H. Harter, in an equally excellent address.

The Archon of the Conclave, W. P. Kuhn, was then called on and made a few remarks showing the great benefits to be derived from the order.

Other speakers were Col. Austin Curtin, of Roland, the oldest Heptasoph in the State; Frank Naginey, who spoke of the financial side of the order; George Brandon, Sr., of Carlisle, and J. S. McCarger.

This order has 87 members in Bellefonte and carries $112,000 worth of insurance. It has been in existence about twenty years.

Friday Evening Instead of Saturday Evening Suggested for Caucus Nominating Meeting.

There is a growing sentiment in Republican circles in favor of holding ward nominating caucuses on Friday evening instead of Saturday evening as has been and is the rule. It is argued that Friday evening will best suit the majority of the voters for the reason that Saturday evening is the one evening in the week that requires the merchants and business men of the borough and their employes to remain closer and longer at their stores and offices on account of the custom of the large element of our people to set apart Saturday evening for shopping and weekly marketing. The authority to fix the day and date for caucus meetings rests with the several ward chairmen and to them we suggest the advisability of giving this subject thought and consideration before appointing the evening for this week's caucus.

Novel Entertainment at State College.

The women at the Pennsylvania State College are preparing for a rather original entertainment that they hope will net a neat sum for the base ball team at that institution. They propose having it next Friday evening in the armory and judging from what we have been able to learn about it most everybody at the College is expected to lend a hand in some way.

It will open with a supper at 5 o'clock and after that there will be music by the College band, mandolin club and glee club, a crazy quadrille and several other events, all of which can be seen for 35 cents.

After the supper and the part of the program immediately following it there will be a cake-walk for prizes and a general dance; admission to the walk and dance being extra.

Friday night, January 26th is the date for the event.

More About Fair.

The Altoona Times of last Friday morning says:

Paul Fair, the State college student, who was sent here for admission to the hospital, was subjected, when here, to a microscopic examination by one of the ablest and most widely known physicians of the city, who diagnosed the case as one of genuine Smallpox, the Indiana Gazette to the contrary notwithstanding.

Gave a Party for Their Friends.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Claud Thompson entertained about forty of their young friends at their home in the Beaver Row. The evening was spent very pleasantly playing games, singing and dancing. Miss Ella Utz, daughter of William Utz, presided at the piano and rendered some beautiful music.

CASTORIA.

A WORD OF CAUTION.

The old saying that "a man, who is naked can't give away his shirt," is only another way of saying that you can't give what you haven't got. The man can't give "free medical advice," or any other kind of medical advice who hasn't got a medical education and a certificate to the fact, in the form of a diploma. And in this particular a woman has no more privilege than a man. She can't give medical advice without medical education and medical knowledge.

The offer of free medical advice made by Dr. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has been imitated by so many, who without any medical qualifications claim to give "medical advice" that a word of caution is necessary.

Don't write for medical advice to any one, man or woman, who is not a physician. If they are physicians they will take the title of physicians or doctors so that you may recognize them. If they don't claim that title it is because they dare not, for fear of the law.

Do not forget that there is just as much difference in doctors as in artists. Every little town has its artist who draws and paints. But these "artists" generally paint copies of the works of great artists like Millet. There was only one Millet.

There is only one Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, such as Dr. Pierce presides over. Thousands of women come or write to Dr. Pierce who have found no help at the hands of doctors of lesser skill and narrower experience.

Any sick or ailing woman, suffering from the distressing forms of disease peculiar to women, is invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Such consultations are absolutely private. Each letter is treated as a sacred confidence, and each answer is sent in a plain envelope, bearing no printing upon it.

In this way offensive questions and repulsive examinations may be avoided. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Decision on Oleomargarine.

A dealer in oleomargarine is not compelled by the legislature to color his goods with pink, although he may be punished for adding any hue to the composition. So decided President Judge Arnold, Thursday in the case of the commonwealth against J. K. Van Dyke. Philadelphia agent of the Oakdale Manufacturing company, of Providence R. I. The main question of the case was whether such a dealer should be compelled to use coloring matter in oleomargarine that will make the composition distinct in color from real butter. Judge Arnold said: "The legislature can not compel the manufacturer or dealer to add any color (as, for instance, pink) to his oleomargarine, but it may punish him for adding any color to it."

His Wife Saved Him.

My wife's good advice saved my life writes F. M. Ross of Winfield, Tenn., for I had such a bad cough I could hardly breathe, I steadly grew worse under doctor's treatment, but my wife urged me to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me." Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Lagrippe, Pneumonia, Asthma, Hay Fever and all maladies of Chest, Throat and Lungs are positively cured by this marvellous medicine. 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. Potts Green drug store.

Found His Fortune.

Alexander Savage, a former resident of Bloomsburg, who for nearly thirty years has been mourned as dead, has just written to his brother, C. E. Savage, from Madrid, Spain, that he is an officer of high standing in the Spanish army, and has acquired an immense fortune. He was formerly in the jewelerly business at Sunbury. He left there and went to China, writing to his friends from there that he had gone to the Orient to seek his fortune. Thirty years have elapsed since that letter was written, and he was generally supposed, until his brother heard from him a few days ago, to be dead.

Woman Shot Intruder.

While William Noble, aged 20 years, with two companions attempted to force an entrance to a house in Tioga township, near Wellsboro, Tuesday night, they were warned by the young women inmates to desist. The warning went unheeded, and one of the young women fired through the door, the ball entering under Noble's right eye, passing through the base of the nose and lodging under the left eye.

PREAMBLE AND RESOLUTIONS

Adopted by Lick Run Lodge, No. 311, I. O. O. F., at its regular meeting, on the evening of Jan'y 10th. 1900.

"Some other world is glad to see
Our star that's gone away;
The light whose going makes our night
Makes somewhere else a day."

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from this life our beloved brother Dr. Lot R. Hensyl, late a member of this body, and whereas, we desire to testify to his value in life, both as our associate here and as an honored member of the community, and whereas, we are profoundly impressed with our loss in all the relations which he bore to us, therefore be it.

Resolved: That in the life and labors of our late Brother, the principles of our beloved order were clearly set forth and beautifully exemplified; winning for himself the love and respect of the whole community, and by his example reflecting the very highest credit upon the principles controlling our order.

Resolved: That in his death our order and the community suffer the loss of a man of the most genial good nature, strong in his integrity, upright in his walk and conversation, just to his fellowman, of large charity, always in an unobtrusive, unostentatious way shunning publicity for an act of kindness rendered, yet always responsive to the call of the needy and the suffering.

Resolved: That we tender to his bereaved widow and children, our most sincere condolence and sympathy, and that an engrossed copy of these resolutions be presented to them.

Resolved: That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this lodge, and that copies of the same be furnished to the local and county newspapers for publication.

What do the Children Drink?

Dont give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O! It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Cost More Than it was Worth.

The superior court, now sitting at Scranton, heard the famous timber cutting appeal from Luzerne county, of Jasper Culver, appellant, against George Hazlett. The disputants own adjoining farms. In 1893 Hazlett, while cutting timber on his own land, went beyond his line and felled ten trees on Culver's tract. The latter brought suit and the case has been before the courts ever since. The value of the trees alleged to have been illegally taken is $19.75. The costs in the litigation so far—exclusive of lawyers' fees—amount to $1100. Judge Halsey, at the last hearing of the case before the lower court, offered to pay the sum in dispute if the parties would settle the costs, but his offer was refused.

Many Deer Killed.

Th state game commission at Harrisburg has heard from all parts of the state concerning the game season, and is informed there were more deer killed legally this year than in many years, and so stringent has been the enforcement of the deer laws, that there are many deer yet in the woods, and they are consequently multiplying. Attorney General Elkin has given the game commission an opinion on the law, in which he says that all special acts conflicting with the general game act have been repealed, and the Pike county people will have to quit killing deer out of season. The commission has been encouraging the establishing of local game commissions, and proposes to hold meetings all over the state.

Old People Made Young.

J. C. Sherman, the veteran editor of the Vermontville (Mich.) Echo, has discovered the remarkable secret of keeping old people young. For years he has avoided Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion Heart trouble, Constipation and Rheumatism, by using Electric Bitters, and he writes: "It can't be praised to highly. It gently stimulates the Kidneys tones the stomach, aids digestion, and gives a splendid appetite. It has worked wonders for my wife and me. It's a marvellous remedy for old people's complaints." Bad Year for Scalpers.

The year 1899 was very unsatisfactory to the scalpers who do a legitimate business. They have been menaced on all sides until Indianapolis now has but three ticket scalping offices against seven one year ago. Of late they have braced up somewhat, having got over their anxiety, in a large measure, as to Congress passing an anti-scalping bill. Then general passenger agents of Indianapolis lines are not curring favor with scalpers to the extent they did in former years. This is due to a fact that the Central Traffic Passenger Association so often tested the market that even the weak lines are cautious in allowing scalpers to handle their tickets. The interchangeable mileage books despite the fact that they get hold of but a few of them, are doing them but little good, and they have to depend largely on the sale of local tickets, and they have handled on Sundays a considerable number of Sunday excursion tickets. One local scalper says he would readily accept a good position and close his office were one offered him, so much is the business hampered by the efforts of the strong lines to crush out scalping officers.—Indianapolis Journal, Jan. 1, 1900.

AVOID all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses and heals the membranes. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and cures catarrh easily and pleasantly. Cold in the head vanishes quickly. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail.

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, attorney-at-law, Monmouth, Ill.

Oom Paul's Cold Feet.

When Oom Paul was in Paris a good many years ago, it was said that he was an honest old soul, but rough, certainly. Still, he was a man of respect. At a diplomatic reception he was guilty of the solecism of drawing off his boots to warm his feet. The weather was cold and there was a blazing fire. He no more saw the harm of toasting his unshod feet than his ungloved hands before it. Oom Paul had principles and stood by them. Whenever his eye caught a lady in a low dress he grunted and turned away his head. He was sent an order to the state box at the opera and availed himself of it. But the ballet so horrified him that he would not stay to see it out. He wondered why God's vengeance did not overtake Paris.

For the Pittsburg and Eastern.

Civil engineers representing the New York Central have arrived at Mahaffey and are engaged in making a survey from Magbee's Mills, two miles west of Mahaffee, to Canoe creek, the contemplated route over Cush creek to the Mahoning having been evidently abandoned. This survey is intended for the extension of the Pittsburg and Eastern, the operating department of which is now under the management of the Pennsylvania division of the Vanderbilt system, and it will eventually connect with the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg at Punxsutawney.

Work on the extension will begin early in the spring, and it is expected that the line can be finished this year. It will tap the new coal fields in the vicinity of Maghees, Sidney, Hillman and the Canoe Valley. It will also open to the market the great beds of fire clay and paving brick clay.

The Burrowing Traitor.

Erving Wilson, one of the Boston cranks, who, under the guise of an "anti-imperialistic league," is practicing treason by encouraging the Filipinos to shoot American soldiers, wrote to a Rockland gentleman for a list of Republicans opposed to McKinley's policy in the Philippines. The Boston crank got a quick reply that there were no such Republicans in Rockland; they were all loyal Americans, believed in backing up the soldier boys on the fighting line at Manila, and supported the administration. So much for the Atkinson-Wilson propaganda in this part of Maine.

Having Fun With Reporters.

The avenue through which the Lycoming county officials received their information as to the place where the body of the youngest child of Mrs. Hummel was buried, has not been learned yet. The officials refuse to divulge the information. The Williamsport papers are at sea on the subject. One Claims that a spiritualistic medium gave the information; another says that it was by a dream of Hummel, and another claims that Hummel let it drop in a conversation.

The Goodman—Condo Decision Sustained.

The Superior Court which has been in session at Scranton adjourned at noon Wednesday to meet in Williamsport the second Monday in February.

Among the decisions handed down wa one by Judge Beeber affirming the decision in the case of Goodman versus Condo. This case is well known to our readers it being the outcome of the famous Etlinger tragedy at Woodward, where Sheriff Condo and his posse burned the Etlinger house in order to capture the murderer.

Mrs. Anna C. Goodman, who was the owner of the house at once began suit against Sheriff John P. Condo to recover damages for the loss of her property. A verdict was finally rendered by the Centre county court in her favor for $865.00. This was appealed to the Superior Court which now sustains the verdict. This with the costs will run the expense up to $1400.00 or over.

Feet and Hand Badly Frozen!

The Westfield Free Press says: "William Boardman, of Clymer, was found in a barn belonging to Samuel Ackley. Friday night in a semi-conscious condition. He was removed to a house nearby and on examination it was discovered that both of his feet and one hand were badly frozen and one of his ears was also frosted. A physician was called, and on noticing the critical condition of the man, advised that he be taken to an hospital, where it was decided that the amputation of both feet and one hand would be necessary. Mr. Boardman's friends decided that it would be better to attempt the saving of the members.

Traffic Getting Heavier.

The traffic on the Beech Creek district of the New York Central has been unusually heavy for the past few days, and despite the fact that rolling stock—engines and cars—are scarce, they are doing a large business. The board marked up for yesterday sent out twenty-one trains from Jersey Shore, the largest number so far this season. The road men scarcely have time to get sleep, as they are on the road nearly all the time.

Sold by all druggists in all parts of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other kind.

—The commissioner at Washington has decided that ordinary judgement notes will hereafter be considered the same as bonds and taxed fifty cents each under the war revenue law, and if a power of attorney is embodied in the note it must bear an added stamp worth 25 cents. The universal practice among business men and internal revenue collectors has hitherto been to consider a judgement note, carrying as tax a stamp worth two cents for every $100 of face value.

The Spruce Creek Tragedy.

Though John O'Neil lay still and lifeless Thursday morning on the floor of Charles Robinson's house at Spruce Creek, his body gaping with five wounds which Robinson's revolver had made in it, yet the husband's revenge was not complete.

When Robinson emptied his revolver into O'Neil, he left his house, and, walking up the street, engaged in conversation with a woman whom he knew as a neighbor. He quietly almost indifferently, informed her of what he had done, and then asked:

"Why didn't you tell me about the crooked work going on at my home?"

The woman replied that she had possessed no positive information and did not care to be tale-bearer.

"Well, I'll just go back and make sure the job is complete" remarked Robinson.

He retraced his steps to the house, reloaded his pistol with two cartridges and fired them into his victim's lifeless body.

The slayer of O'Neil has maintained strict silence in Huntingdon jail, having been instructed by his attorneys not to speak of the tragedy. He admitted Friday however, that the killing of O'Neil afforded him great pleasure, and he is said to have regretted that the betrayer of his honor had no more lives to take. He accepts his imprisonment as a matter of course, displaying as little emotion as when he meted out an awful fate to John O'Neil, or when he coolly sent from his switch tower the telegraphic message to a Harrisburg detective that he was the murderer and wouldn't run away.

With Mrs. Robinson it is otherwise. Ever since the shooting she has mourned for the man her husband shot.

O'Neil's mother is said to have secured the services of some of Pittsburg's most prominent lawyers for the prosecution of the slayer of her son, and it is believed that Mrs. Robinson will assist the state in its efforts to bring her husband to the gallows.

THE GOETHE ANNIVERSARY.

If Goethe were living, he would now be 150 years old, which fact German authors and book printers have just anniversarized.

An interesting detail is that Goethe's life was one of uninterrupted prosperity, and that in 1826 Cotto, of Stuttgart, paid $60,000 for his copyrights. That would not be a large sum nowadays for men much less important than Goethe to receive; neither is it a small sum to to pay for copyrights upon books some of which have been in print over fifty years.

An Easy Way to get Clear of Debts.

An indebtness of $5,564,917, said to be the largest schedule of liabilities ever presented for discharge under the National Bankruptcy act, is set forth in a petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed in the United States District Court by Francis P. Owings, who was formerly interested largely in real estate in Chicago. There are no assets. This is an easy way to get clear of debts.

Lumbermen Favored by good Weather.

Light rains and melting snows cause the upper Susquehanna and its tributaries to rise and there are indications of a general breakup of the ice in the river. Reports from the lumber regions indicate more rafts will reach the Lock Haven timber market this coming Spring than for many years past. The weather has been favorable for the timber jobbers and many of the rafts are already at landings. There will be, it is said seventy-five rafts from Clearfield Creek alone.

Sloppy Sidewalks.

The sidewalks, pavements and crossings in many places are in a sloppy condition owning to the snow that fell last week not having been removed. During the day the snow thaws and is turned into slop and water. At night the water and snow freezes, making the walks slippery and dangerous.

—A dispatch was received at this place Friday evening announcing the death of Mrs. Sarah M. Huston McBride, wife of Rev. James McBride, which sad event occurred at her home in Princeton, Iowa, January 19th. She was a sister of Mrs. James P. Coburn, and Mrs. Evelyn Rodgers of this place; and of Dr. James Huston, of Lamar.

That Cutting Acid.

that arises from the stomach and almost strangles, is caused by fermentation of the food in the stomach, it is a foretaste of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and if neglected, will develop into chronic stage. Take one of Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets immediately after eating, and it will prevent this distress and aid digestion. 18 in a box, 10 cents.—60.

What is Condensed Smoke?

It is a liquid smoke, made from Hickory Wood, containing a valuable meat preservative, and which applied to Hams, Bacon, Dried Beef, Sausages, Pologna and Fish gives them a delicious flavor and preserves them from flies and other insects. It requires no fuel—no smoke house,—does not heat the meat—there is no shrinkage—when applied with a brush takes 15 minutes instead of 15 days, the old way—Price 75 cents a bottle—Ask for a book on Condensed Smoke at

EDITORIAL.

CONGRESS will have to quicken its gait if this session is to end before late in the summer.

MR. ADDICKS of Delaware, would like to know what business it is of anybody's whether Senator Clarke, of Montana, holds his office or not. This subject is a tender one to Mr. Addicks, and those

IT is an outrage on public decency that such murders as occurred in Kentucky recently should be permitted to take place. It disgraces the country both at home and abroad and steps should be taken to prevent the constant recurrence of such affairs.

IT is now estimated in London that the South African campaign will cost England at least sixty millions of pounds (three hundred millions of dollars), and it is proposed that the sinking fund of the national debt should be suspended for several years to defray the cost.

THE efforts of the Boer sympathizers in America to arouse public sentiment in this country against England will meet with scant success if such blowhards and anti-American bombasts as Senators Mason and Tillman and Congressmen Champ Clarke, Lentz, Sulzer and others of their kind are permitted to join in the crusade.

COUNT BONI DE CASTELLANE, the French end of the Gould family who has been eating up the Gould millions at a crazy pace, is with his wife, nee Miss Annie Gould, visiting in New York. As Count Boni has had some experience in demonstrations against the French republic perhaps Senators Pettigrew, Hoar, Mason and others who are engaged in the same line of work against the American republic could get a few pointers from this noble representative of French "disloyalists."

ENGLAND MUST WIN IN SOUTH AFRICA.

As England's war in South Africa progresses, or retrogrades as the case may be, the fact becomes more apparent, more manifest that Merrie Old England is wrestling with a problem the solution of which may mean the life or death of the empire. The eyes of the civilized nations are fixed intently upon the battle fields in far off Africa and with deepest concern the powers of the world are awaiting the final outcome of the struggle for supremacy between the warriors of Queen Victoria and the farmers of the Transvaal.

England has gone too far to retreat with honor and safety, her prestige hangs upon the ultimate success of her arms. The frequent and costly reverses her army has met with thus far in the Transvaal campaign has dimmed the lustre of her past immortalized achievements on the field of battle and has subjected her boasted military efficacy and power to the harsh and acrid criticism of antagonistic peoples and governments.

It is asserted that the Boers are ready and willing to propose a compromise to their English foes, by which England cedes to her enemy the territory now occupied by the armies of the two Republics, pays an indemnity of twenty million pounds and acknowledges the complete independence of the Transvaal. There is no probability that England will consider for a moment such a proposition, or in fact any overtures for peace the terms of which are dictated or prescribed by the Boers. A compromise at this stage of the game by England would be interpreted as a tacit acknowledgment of defeat and the British empire cannot afford to assume the responsibilities that must accompany such an admission nor dare she risk a speculation upon the results of such a dangerous expedient. Destiny has marked out for her the course she must pursue, the South African war must be brought to a finish and England must be the victor.

Coming events will determine the future of the world's greatest empire and the nature and symbol of these events rest with her gallant and heroic sons at the front. These are the men who must maintain, at the price of their blood, the honor and the glory of a nation whose history teems with deeds of valor and illustrious achievements on land and sea; these are the men in whom the future power of a great kingdom is intrusted. Will they prove equal to the task? In our judgment they will. History records the fact that the onward march of civilization and the world's development triumphs over every obstacle, conquers every resistance. We look upon the Boer as a barrier to the world's progress. If he will not rise above the narrow and bigoted system of his mode of government and play his part in the world's advancement he must be made to do so or be compelled to relinquish his authority to govern in that part of the earth's surface he now dominates and controls.

THE $10,000 per annum Health Officer editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer is surely earning his salary as Health Officer. He is chief in charge of the department of panegyrics of the Quay press bureau and is doing a great work. His magnificent tributes to Quay and Quayism appearing almost daily on the editorial page of the Inquirer are proof that he is "working out" his debt to Quay for the good, fat office he received from Mr. Quay's governor.

SENATOR CHAUNCEY DEPEW, of New York, is a director in eighty-two corporations and an active member of twenty-five clubs. When one stops to consider the time it must require to attend to the duties of these one hundred and seven important occupations not to mention the precious moments the Senator gives to dinners, banquets, after-dinner speeches and oratorial declamations the wonder is that he has time to attend to his senatorial obligations. Perhaps he hasn't!

SHALL it be McKinley and Bliss vs. Bryan and Hogg?

A JUSTIFICATION THAT FAILS IN ITS MISSION.

Senator Penrose recently prepared, and proclaimed through the medium of the machine press, an elaborate and optomistic interview on the Quay case. He said a great many things in the course of his remarks that were just what one would expect from a man of his breadth of knowledge, of his fine sense of justice and discrimination between facts and fancies, Mr. Penrose naturally had little that was good and much that was bad to say of the "insurgents." Happily, however, his position in Pennsylvania politics is so clearly defined, his subserviency to the "boss" so unquestionably sustained by his public record that his tirades against the opponents of the machine lose much, if not all, of their force upon the reading public. It is not our purpose to touch upon all the vagaries of his prejudiced mind that filled space in his last week's published statement. We will only refer to one paragraph in which the distinguished defender of the faith attempts to justify the action of Governor Stone in his appointment of Col. Quay to the United States Senate. The asininity of his assertions is a proof of his inability to read correctly the public mind or an attempt to deceive the people by misrepresentation and deception, which, we will leave to our readers to judge. Mr. Penrose says:

"Governor Stone, in addition to his constitutional right, but voiced the overwhelming wish of the people and the legislature, when he appointed Colonel Quay during an adjournment of the legislature without filling the vacancy."

Had not the majority of the legislators been opposed to the election of Colonel Qusy he would have received the coveted billet long in advance of their adjournment. Had not the majority of the people of Pennsylvania been antagonistic to his return to the Senate they would have approved the Governor's appointment and not turned upon him—the Governor—a storm of censure and condemnation the like of which was never before in the history of the Commonwealth directed against its Chief Executive.

Mr. Penrose seemingly forgets that a majority of the legislators who refused to elect Colonel Quay memorialized the United States Senate against his admission to that body upon the Governor's credentials, and he still further disregards the fact that seventy-five per cent. of the newspapers of the state, which reflect the sentiment of the people of their respective localities and districts, are lined up against Colonel Quay, and his machine as well.

The honorable Boise is sadly in error in his testimony of justification. He had better look elsewhere for evidence to strenghen his defense of his ally, the Governor. He will get a line on public sentiment on the Quay question when noses are counted in the next legislature that will convince him that as a mind reader and an interpreter of public opinion he is a monumental failure.

WHEN United States Senators announce that they will vote to seat Quay simply upon grounds of friendship and good-fellowship without regard for the constitutional or legal status of his case, one is prone to believe that Mr. Quay will secure his seat in the Senate. The delay in presenting the case to the Senate for a vote may perhaps be favorable to the Quay interests and detrimental to the opposition. Whatever may be the result, however, one thing is beyond dispute, the people of Pennsylvania will be the arbiters of Mr. Quay's political fate next fall and they will place their judgment and decree beyond the reach of a Governor to revoke and a United States Senate to play with.

THE general interest taken in public affairs this year is strongly shown by the particularly large number of applications for copies of the Congressional Record. Senator Turner, whose Washington constituents are generally intelligent readers, has been asked for three or four times as many as he is allowed by the government, and the other western Senators and Congressmen report almost as great a demand.

THE CHURCH IN POLITICS.

Frequently in the heat of a political campaign when the exigencies of a political situation drives into the strife a minister of the Gospel, eager and anxious to assist a member of his congregation or a personal friend who is engaged in a contest for public office or for the more commendable purpose of promoting the interests of a political party that favors and supports measures which he believes to be for the good of the people and the country, we hear and read from many sources opinions, sometimes too forcibly and harshly expressed, to the effect that the church should not be dragged into the vortex of political contentions and a clergyman who so far forgets his duty, his dignity and his divine calling as to publicly proclaim his sentiments upon political questions and controversies, announce his preference for one candidate as against another or endeavor, by his influence and counsel, to mould the thoughts of his people to conform with his ideas and convictions regarding public affairs involved in a political campaign, is unworthy of the profession he follows, a reproach to the cloth he wears and should either strictly confine his attention to the spiritual requirements of his office or abandon the cause whose interests are injured and impeded by his political digression.

Why should a clergyman be denied the right of personal effort and service in political campaigns? By virtue of his station as a minister of the Gospel does he forfeit any of the prerogatives of citizenship? Does he not have the same individual interest in the administration of government affairs as the banker, the lawyer, the merchant, the farmer and the laborer? Is he not to have a voice in the selection of good, honest, capable men for service in our legislative, executive and judicial departments of our local, state and national body politic? Has he not the liberty to express his opinion upon subjects which are embodied in the platforms of the great political parties and is it not his right to urge those who value his judgment and respect his counsel to vote for the candidates who represent the party whose doctrines and principles according to his belief will best serve the people and the needs of the country?

The writer does not advocate for the clergyman a political activity that will engage him in the reprehensible features of a political contest, but he does insist that it is the duty of a pastor to present to the people of his charge, whenever the occasion arises, a clear, comprehensive, non-partisan exposition on men and measures involved in a political struggle; to point out to them that their duty as citizens and electors requires them to participate in all primaries and general elections and use their best efforts toward securing only fit and worthy candidates for public office, whatever its rank, whatever its importance. It is just as essential to man's well-being that his temporal condition be the subject of a pastor's concern as it is that his spiritual life should be carefully looked after and constantly nourished.

The church and the government—local, state and national—should go hand in hand; each have a part to play, each a work to do in the evangelization of the world. There is nothing that will advance the interests of God's church so much as the enactment of wise and beneficent laws for the government of our country, and their enforcement by honest, upright and capable officials. It is within the pastor's province to do much for the advancement of the church by doing what he can to place the affairs of government into wise and competent hands. The church developes good citizenship, good citizenship effects, or should, good government and good government fosters and strengthens the church. It is eminently proper and appropriate that all ministers of the Gospel should make political conditions and campaign issues the theme of earnest and serious discourse, whenever the necessity demands, not from the narrow standpoint of partisan inclination or bias but from a lofty and conscientious desire to contend for purity in politics, honesty in government and incorruptibility in public office. Is not the necessity for such action at hand?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 1900.

President McKinley will use his discretion about giving the information asked for by the Allen resolution as to the application of a representative of the Transvaal Republic for recognition by this government and why recognition was refused, as on motion of Senator Spooner, the resolution was amended so as to request the President, "if not incompatible with the public interests", to furnish the information. This resolution has no other object than to embarrass the administration. It is a part of the game which has been so unsuccessfully played by the author of the numerous resolutions, asking for all sorts of information concerning the Philippines, and deserves no answer. The sudden spasm of sympathy for the Boers is in reality a democratic attempt to change the present friendly relations between the U. S. and England, for no better reason than for the making of political capital among the Irish voters. At least two republican Senators seem to have been trapped in this game, as Senators Hale and Mason were among the speakers at a public meeting last night, which was advertised as a "Boer demonstration.

The House will devote three days beginning Tuesday, to a discussion of the Robert's report and will then proceed to fire Roberts either by declaring his seat vacant, in accordance with the majority report, or by swearing him in and expelling him, in accordance with the minority report.

The House Elections Committee No. 1 has reported in favor of Hon. W. F. Aldrich, who is contesting the seat held by G. A. Robbins, democrat, from the 4th Alabama district, and there is no doubt of the seating of Mr. Aldrich.

Chairman Payne, of the House Ways and Means Committee, said of his bill providing for an extension of U. S. laws to Porto Rico and the establishment of customs and internal revenue collection districts on the island, which is now being considered by that committee: "It is along the line suggested by Gen. Davis, Gov. General of Porto Rico; Gen. Roy Stone, who has had extended experience there; the Porto Rican delegation, now in Washington, and those representatives of American Commercial interests who have spoken on the subject. The bill is not the result of any conference or agreement, but I think it expresses the general view of those who have followed the hearings. The essential point is that the legislation will aid Porto Rico, without in any way injuring American interests."

That Mr. Bryan is beginning to to realize that his party has got on the wrong side of the expansion question was shown, while he was in Washington, a day or two ago by his advising the democratic Senators and Representatives to be very particular in their language when discussing the question publicly, and by his saying in an authorized interview: "I am not opposed to all expansion; each proposed annexation must be settled upon its own merits. "It is the old, old democratic story. In every Presidential campaign for years that party has favored, or pretended to favor, any old thing that promised to catch voters, and has hesitated to favor a thing in one locality and oppose it in another. Before the campaign gets fairly started, democratic speakers and editors are likely to be declaring that they have never exposed expansion at all; that it is only the bugaboo they have themselves manufactured and labeled "imperialism" which they oppose. That sort of game isn't likely to fool anybody. There are no imperialist in this country, and are not likely to be.

The Naval Board of Construction has, by a vote of 4 to 1, turned down the recommendation of the Naval officers who, after witnessing the trials of the submarine torpedo boat Holland, thought the government ought to buy the boat, which is now at the Washington navy yard the reason given for the action of the Board was that this class of boat is still in the experimental stage. In fact, the government is itself experimenting, as it is having built, by the Columbia Iron Works, of Baltimore, a submarine torpedo boat.

The House adopted an important amendment to the regular Pension Appropriation Bill, before passing it. It authorizes the Commissioner of Pensions to withhold the fee of any attorney when he has knowledge that the attornoy has not discharged his full duty to the claimant. It is said to have been the practice of some attorneys to do nothing toward getting a case allowed, after they filed it, trusting to the claimant getting some member of Congress to push it through, knowing that being the attorney of record in the case, they could not be kept out of their fee when it was allowed.

Secretary Wilson was one of the most pleased men in Washington when President McKinley declined to pardon the Philadelphia merchants, who are serving a term in prison for violating the oleomarine laws, as he had fought the application for a pardon from the first, claiming that to pardon them would encourage violations of those laws, which were enacted for the protection of the dairy interests of the country as well as that of the consumers of butter.

A Bloody Little War.

In the plenitude of war gossip from Africa via London, it should not be forgotten that a war of considerable magnitude is being waged just acrossed our own borders in the sister republic of Mexico. A dispatch from Nogales tells of a fierce fight between Mexicans and Yaquis, in which the latter lost 200 killed and 500 prisoners. Making due allowances for the untrustworthiness of reports via Nogales, there is enough in the statement to show that in the Indian insurrection, which antedates the Transvaal war as to the time of beginning, Mexico has a very ugly and difficult problem with which to deal. The great war in Africa may be settled long before the smaller rebellion is crushed. The contest is uncomfortably near our borders, too and likely at any time to break over and force this government to give it attention.

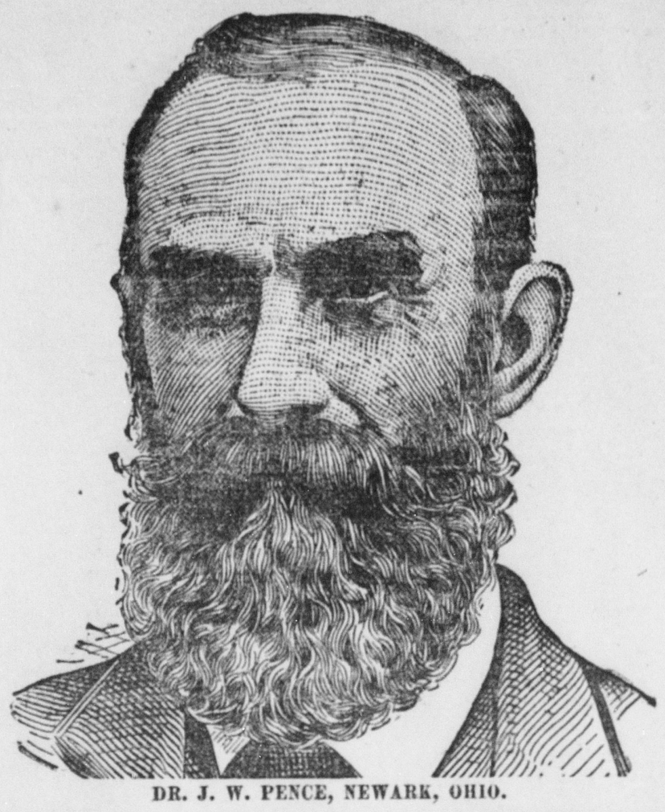
ANDREW CARNEGIE'S hobby, as all know, is the education of the masses and as a means of working out his scheme he has been dotting the landscape of America with public library buildings wherever he and the local authorities have been able to arrange the conditions which invariably accompany his gifts. According to rumor Mr. Carnegie has taken a new method of instructing the dear public. It is said he is defraying the expenses of the peregrinations of the William Jennings Bryan bureau of information of which the gallant Nebraskian Colonel is the main and only guy. Mr. Carnegie is now demonstrating the wisdom of the old adage "a fool and his money is soon parted."

THERE are some differences of opinion in regard to the form of the Shipping Bill now pending in Congress. In its present shape it gives subsidies for speed and capacity and as such would inure principally to the benefit of the great Atlantic passenger lines, already rich and prosperous. Another form proposed, however, is to give premiums for the number of tons of freight carried. This would produce slower ships but it would enormously increase our foreign trade and our merchant marine.

How can Bryan possibly expect to win this fall? Even if he carried every state that is at all doubtful he would still fall short of a majority, though this is improbable, but there is no possible combination of states in which he has any chance of winning that can give him the electoral majority.

There seems to be quite as much opposition in France to the reciprocity treaty with France as there is in this country, and for the same reason—fear that it will result in lessening the demand and prices for some home products.

DOCTORS USE PE-RU-NA.



DR. J. W. PENCE, NEWARK, OHIO.

NEWARK, OHIO.

S. B. Hartman, M. D., Columbus, O.:

It is now seventeen years since I received the first edition of your book entitled "The Ills of Life." I received it in the evening mail, and before I retired I read and pondered over every word in the book. I was greatly impressed with your candor and sincerity. The book left no doubt in my mind as to the remarkable virtues of your Pe-ru-na. It was because of this impression that I resolved I would test your assertions, and test them in a way that could leave no doubt.

I began prescribing Pe-ru-na, as recommended in your book, and prescribed it precisely as you directed. As you know, the prevailing diseases are inflammations or irritations of the internal organs of the body, either of the head, the throat, the lungs, bowels, etc. I prescribed it hundreds of times for these diseases during all the following seventeen years, and I have never lost a single case during all this time, although I have often related this to my medical associates, who at first expressed their doubts, and sometimes very emphatically, but after I had treated a large number of cases that had been given up, and cured them, they began to believe what I said.

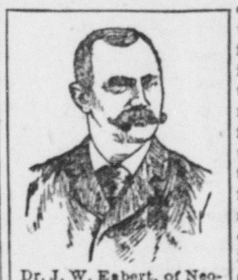
I rely so wholly upon Pe-ru-na in very disease that affects the mucous membranes lining the internal organs, that I never for a moment think of prescribing anything else. Since using Pe-ru-na, I have never had a patient die from inflammation of the lungs, bladder, bowels, stomach or kidneys. Every case recovered in a very short time. In other words, I prescribed Pe-ru-na for all cases of catarrhal diseases. I believe you are right in classing all irritations and inflammations of the internal organs as catarrh. Catarrh means irritation and inflammation of some mucous surface, and also that such irritation and inflammation are caused either by taking cold, or by some local cause.



Dr. J. W. Egbert, of Neosho, Mo., a graduate of three schools of medicine, uses Pe-runa in his practice with gratifying results.

I see that you generally use a portrait when you publish a certificate, and as I have just had some pictures taken, I enclose you one. You can use it and this letter, one, or both, just as you wish, if you think it will promote the use of Pe-ru-na. If you would like special cases that I have treated with Pe-ru-na, I can give you hundreds of them.

Very truly yours, Dr. J. W. Pence.

A. W. Perrin, M. D. S., 980 Halsey street, Brooklyn, N. Y., in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman says the following: "I am using your Pe-ru-na myself, and am recommending it to my patients in all cases of catarrh, and find it to be more than you represent. Pe-ru-na can be had now of all druggists in this section; at the time I began using it, it was unknown."

A. W. Perrin, M. D. S.

Send for winter catarrh book. Address The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

This is "Awfulless."

One of our exchanges takes the floor to remark that next year we may expect to read something like the following in the daily papers: "About 10 o'clock this morning a horseless wagon loaded with cowless milk collided with a brainless rider on a chainless wheel. The luckless wheelman was badly injured and being homeless, he was taken in a horseless cab to the home for the friendless, where his death was painless in an hour or so."

Yes or No?

Bellefonte People are Respectfully Asked to Answer These Questions:

Is there anything in the evidence of one's senses? Is there anything in the testimony of one's friends? Can reliance be placed upon statements from people we know? Are the opinions of local citizens of any greater moment than those of strangers? Would you sooner believe people living in some far-away place than citizens of your own city?

We think not, for home proof can easily be investigated.

Mr. Curtis Johnson, of 583 Bishop street, freight and truckman, says:

"I had backache and lameness across my loins for a year or more. At times the lameness was so acute I could lift nothing and if I stooped it was impossible for me to straighten. When driving there was a steady aching over my kidneys the whole time and I had a dull, tired feeling which took away all my ambition. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. Potts Green's drug store and they soon cured me from the whole combination of troubles and they did it quickly and thoroughly. My wife was also suffering from a tiresome grinding backache and she used Doan's Kidney Pills and they invigorated her generally. She now speaks of them as highly as I do. We never came across any remedy which surpassed Doan's Kidney Pills.

MAKING A PEN.

The center slit in the pen is cut by a machine which seems almost to think. It consists of two chisels, which barely pass each other when the slit is made and the exact way in which the pen is poised, so as to place the chisels in the proper position for cutting, is one of the marvels of pen-making.

The early pens were so expensive that the steel penmakers advertised that they would make such repairs as were necessary to their pens for a stated time, generally about six months When a man damaged his pen, he carried it back to the factory and had it mended by an experienced mechanic.

The Roman emperors always signed their names in purple ink. No subject of the empire was permitted to use or even have this ink, and on at least two occasions the possession of a small quantity of it was considered treason, and the person owning this emblem of royalty was put to death.

Philadelphia Times Almanac.

Brim full of information the Philadelphia Times Almanac for 1900 comes to us, and is greeted with same appreciation which has met its predecessors. War events; disasters and prominent deaths of the past year; national, state and city governments, and many other useful facts fill its pages. Every person should have the Times almanac.

Those politicians who are playing with, or upon, American sympathy for either of the belligerants in the South African war would better be very careful; they are handling political lyddite.

The warm weather and rains have taken away all the ice on the dams, and the waters are somewhat raised, and it will take very continued cold weather to make ice. Those persons that did not house ice when it was here, may find themselves in the lurch. "Dont monkey with the buzz saw."

Fred K. Chance notion salesman of Philadelphia a genial and all around good fellows called on our merchants last week—everybody knows Fred.

Our people here, were very much surprised to hear that the Superior Court has affirmed the findings of the Centre County Court in the Case of Goodman vs. Condo, in the burning of the house connected with the Woodward tragedy a few years ago. All with one accord say, that the county ought and should pay the amount awarded by the jury and not the Sheriff. If all is true that we hear certain parties are to blame for this, as it could and would have been settled long ere this.

Walter Shutt and wife, of Boalsburg, were visitors at the home of John Braine for a few days.

Miss Katie Frank has gone to Union county to visit her relatives and friends. She will be gone for several weeks.

Rev. E. H. Gerhart, the new Lutheran minister of this place, preached an excellent German communion sermon to a full house on last Saturday.

DEATH OF MRS. DANIEL WOLF.

On last Thursday morning at the hour of eleven o'clock, the death angel again entered our midst and summoned away the spirit of Mrs. Fietta Wolf. The death messenger entered the sick chamber very silently and without a struggle summoned the spirit to its blessed reward. "In the death of Mrs. Wolf Aaronsburg loses a kind and Christian woman, the church a consistent member and the family a loving wife and kind mother. Deceased was the daughter of William and Clara Tobias, and was born in Berks county, Pa., Dec. 9th, 1828, On the 11th day of January, 1849, she was united in marriage with Daniel Wolf. Rev. Charles Rees, then pastor of the Lutheran church, performing the ceremony. Four children were born to this couple, three of whom are till living: Charles, of Aaronsburg; Thomas, of Fireside, Seneca county, O.; and Mrs. Howard Miller, of Rebersburg, Pa. On Monday following, the 18th, her remains were carried to their last resting place in the family lot at the Wolf's chapel cemetery, about two miles east of Aaronsburg, followed by a large number of sorrowing neighbors and friends.

The funeral services were conducted in the German language by her pastor, the Rev. E. H. Gerhart, of the Lutheran church, assisted by the Rev. F. W. Brown, of the Reformed church. An aged husband, the two sons and one daughter are left of the family to mourn her departure.

ON THE STROKE OF THE CLOCK.

Dr. Depew says of the late Mr Vanderbilt: "His most marked characteristic was punctuality. He insisted on punctuality to the minute." When he was in Europe he would cable across and say that 5 o'clock on such a day he would be at such a place in New York. And on the stroke of the clock he was always there.

It would not be true to say that Mr. Vanderbilt owed his vast fortune to his passion for punctuality, but it certainly was the keynote to the success with which he added so many new millions to the millions that were his by inheritance.

Punctuality has been the favorite foible of large numbers of men who have filled a larger place than Mr. Vanderbilt's in the world of affairs. It was George Washington's. He dined while in the White House at 4 o'clock, and if invited guests came in late they found him eating. "My cook," he used to say, "never asks if the visitors have arrived, but if the hour has arrived." His secretary excused his failure to be on time by saying that his watch was slow. "Then you must get a new watch or I a new secretary," replied Washington. Napoleon had the same devotion to punctuality. Having invited his marshals to dine with him, they came in late and found he had finished eating. "Gentlemen," he said, "it is now past dinner; we will now proceed to business." "Beware of dawdling," was Sir Walter Scott's caution to young men, and he, too, rigidly ruled his life by watch-ticks. It was remarked of John Quincy Adams as Speaker of the House that he was never known to be a minute behind time in taking the chair. Daniel Webster also was the soul of punctuality. According to Hugo, the battle that settled the fate of Europe for the present century, Waterloo, was lost 'to the French because Blucher made a fetich of punctuality and came up 'on time," while Grouchy, for whom Napoleon waited, arrived too late to help him.

It is interesting to note that the gift of punctuality seems to be somewhat a matter of inheritance. Cornelius Vanderbilt and John Jacob Astor, the founders of the two wealthiest American families were both men who rose, ate, worked and went to bed on the stroke of the clock.

It Is None of Our Business.

This government cannot be wheedled by sentimentalists or dragooned by political opportunists into forming or delivering any expression of sympathy for our interest in the South African conflict. It is none of our business anyhow. One of the contestants is our friend, bound to us by the ties of consanguity and mutual interest, and the other is a people struggling for what it believes to be its rights. Let the God of Battle decide it, and let us, as a nation, keep our fingers out of the fire. We have troubles of our own, pleasures of our own and business of our own that should command our undivided attention. When the trouble is over we will help to bind up the wounds and nurse the sick, but until it is over we will have nothing to say.

Big Things.

Surely this is the age of big things. Not only are our corporations and trade combinations launched on a stupendous scale, but our personal worth is colossal. It is established that a man's vote in Montana in the election of one United States senator is valued at $15,000. We are informed that the election of one United States senator cost $1,250 000. A new novel is nothing unless it have a circulation of 400,000 copies in three month. A steamship under 700 feet is a tub. A locomotive under 100 tons is a plaything. A lie is not counted unless it is a whopper.

PINK'S TAKE AT MESA VERDE.

BY HOWARD MARCUS STRONG.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

Where two states, two territories and the Rio San Juan draw to a point of meeting and where towers, cliffs, caves and abandoned pueblos afford a veritable city of refuge for the law hounded there Rucker, his two cutthroat companions and a dozen renegade Navajoes intrenched themselvas and defied capture.

The cause of Rucker's enforced isolation was directly traceable to the unfortunate slipping of his mask during a successful hold up on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. In the words of Rucker himself, "It give the whole durn snap away."

For up to that time he had been a trusted employee of the railroad, serving as agent at Wagon Wheel Gap and later at Silverton.

"Looks like they weren't goin to try to take us," Rucker observed to Fent and Morely a week after the hold up. "Blamed if I'm not tired of this layin around."

All three started to their feet and gazed in the direction of an old tower, from the top of which an Indian was gesticulating wildly.

"I guess he's seen signs of our friends," laughed Fent. "Come on, Rucker! There won't be any more layin round for a spell."

They were soon standing beside the Indian, straining their eyes to the north.

"I wish we had a glass," Rucker said.

"Don't need it. See that flash?" And Morely pointed to a small spot of dazzling brightness on the top of Sierra El Late.

"A heliograph!" exclaimed Rucker. "I suppose that means they've got the regulars after us!"

All day the watch was kept up in every direction. Shortly before dusk a score of cavalrymen came in sight over a ridge on the Mesa Verde and halted just out of rifle range. A man dressed in buckskin rode forward to the foot of the first rise and, dismounting, started to climb the rugged bluff.

There was a flash from up among the ruins, and a bullet sang so closely to his head that it stirred his long yellow hair.

"Hey! Let up on that, will you?" he shouted, waving his hand in apparent protest, but continuing his upward climb.

There was a second sharp report, and something clipped the top of his big felt hat.

"Amuse yourself!" he roared, never stopping for a second. "Pop away, only don't spoil my usefulness! I'm the sheriff of La Plata county, and I've got warrants for Rucker and Fent and Morely!"

"Well, if you take another step," said the last named individual, raising his head above an adobe wall, "you'll be the deadest sheriff this county ever saw!"

"Pshaw! You don't say so!" And the man in buckskin kept straight on, mopping his moist face with a yellow silk handkerchief. Without a second's warning Morely fired, and the sheriff pitched to the ground without a groan.

"Dern you!" Rucker cried wildly. "Why did you kill him? Do you want to have us strung up for murder? I've a notion to blow your worthless head off!"

"Save your charge," replied Morely, coolly placing three fresh cartridges in the magazine of his gun. "Don't waste a shot on me. Look over there!"

All that Rucker could see was a cloud of dust rapidly rolling toward the butte, but he knew it enveloped a squad of United States cavalry. A moment later the blue uniforms were out of their saddles and climbing up the steep slope.

The three white men and the dozen Indians opened fire with murderous effect. The soldiers replied and strove bravely to reach the summit, but it was a hopeless undertaking, and as night closed in they retreated, most of them badly wounded and three dead besides the sheriff.

"It is kind of tough business," Fent admitted to Rucker as they buried the victims of the encounter, "but it can't be helped. You'll get used to it in time, like me and Morely. There's one thing, though—they ain't likely to disturb us again for some time."

After the failure of the expedition against the train robbers the officials held a consultation at Durango. A reward of $5,000 was also offered for the capture of Rucker, Morely and Fent.

One morning a week after the killing of the sheriff Rucker was fairly paralyzed by the sudden appearance of a stranger inside the old pueblo. He managed to let out a yell, however, that soon brought Fent and Morely to the spot.

"Good morning, gentlemen," said the intruder, carefully adjusting his eyeglasses and bowing to the little group. "Can you give me any data relative to these ruins? Are they Moki, Navajo or some extinct race? I am preparing a work on the pueblos of Arizona, New Mexico and southern Colorado, and any information will be gratefully received."

"Which direction did you come from?" asked Morely abruptly.

"From the south, sir," was the reply. "I was able to see these towers from Carrizo mountain. I've done the Rio Grande valley and also the Zuni plateau. If you will excuse me, I will lead my burro here and show you a part of my collection of Pueblo Indian pottery. It is very unique."

"Never mind," Morely growled. "I'll send for it."

"Oh, thank you!" replied the stranger, stroking his mustache and seating himself on a convenient roll of blankets. "In the meantime will you join me?" And he produced a flask of the finest whisky that had ever reached the banks of the Rio San Juan.

Several days passed, and the ethnologist continued his explorations and notations, apparently oblivious to the constant guard that was kept over his movements.

Rucker approached him at last as he was earnestly engaged in exhuming some Indian remains.

"I don't suppose you'd like to change places with them bones," Rucker observed.

There was a sharp glance from the stranger's glasses, but he continued his digging.

"Why?" he said.

"Because," whispered Rucker, "Fent and Morely are goin to kill you! They're on to your game—spy or detective, somethin like that. I don't want any more murder done around here myself."

There was no answer from the man in the grave.

"Go tonight," persisted Rucker, and he sauntered away to meet his companions.

The following morning the ethnologist was missing. Morely and Fent administered kicks and curses to the whole dozen Indians for permitting the man's escape.

"I reckon he found it too much of a job to tackle single handed," Morely laughed after he had got over his ill humor. "I'll bet my head he don't come back soon again."

This little event, however, was speedily driven from the minds of the fugitives by an occurrence of much greater importance. A young woman had been found mounted upon a fine horse riding aimlessly about the valley. Both she and the animal were promptly captured and taken to the old ruins.

The girl was a big, rawboned creature, with stringy, dust colored hair, but a remarkably pretty face. As the Indians brought her into the presence of the three white men she burst into tears.

"Cheer up, sis," said Rucker awkwardly. "We ain't goin to do you no harm. What have you been doin down in the valley?"

"I ain't a-tellin," she sobbed.

"Ah, go ahead," Fent said encouragingly.

The girl looked from Fent to Rucker and from Rucker to Morely.

"Be youse a posse?" she inquired. "Be youse a-huntin pap?"

Fent laughed and asked:

"Who is your pap, my beauty?"

"He's Yaller Jaan," the girl announced, "and they're after him. I'm tryin to find him to give him his gun and some ca'tridges. He left suddenlike."

"Reckon she's a half breed," Morely said behind his hand. "Her old man's the worst horse thief in ten states."

"Your pap's got an eye for horseflesh," he continued, turning to the girl and motioning toward the animal she had been riding. "What's your name, now?" he persisted, trying to get her to speak.

"Pink," she said and was gone in a flood of tears.

"S'pose we kind of make her comfortable here and then clear out," suggested Morely.

"And see that you keep away from her yourself," Rucker said with meaning, to which Morely responded with an oath.

That night Rucker felt a gentle touch on his face and started up to find the girl bending over him. Following her silent direction, he slipped out without disturbing his companions and came to where the girl was seated upon a rock.

"Say," she began abruptly, "do you know why I came here? I was up at Silverton once and saw you at the station, and I liked you."

Rucker breathed deeply and, seating himself by her side, placed one arm around her waist.

"Let's get out of this," resumed the girl. "I like you, and I reckon I ain't no slouch to look at. Let's clear out tonight and give them devils the slip. They'll cut your throat some day to get that money. You've got it all now, ain't you?"

"Yes, all," said Rucker, patting the belt nervously.

"This ain't no place for a man like you," she persisted. "And the horse is over there all ready. He can take two of us. Come on!"

Half reluctantly Rucker permitted himself to be led down the steep pathway. The horse followed noiselessly, for Pink had carefully muffled his hoofs.

At the foot of the bluff they mounted and turned the horse out across the Mesa Verde. A few moments later the sound of pursuers was clearly borne to their ears.

"How many horses have they?" said Pink.

"Only two," Rucker answered. "The Indians will come on foot."

"Rucker!" cried a stern voice that made him sway in the saddle. "Rucker, I've just taken your money and gun! Don't move or I'll kill you!" And straightway a pair of handcuffs snapped over Rucker's wrists.

"Pink!" gasped Rucker.

"Pinkerton!" was the response of the captor. He then continued: "Rucker, I want you to ride to Parrott and give yourself up. You can drive all right, and the horse can get away with only one of us. Swear that you'll do it, or"—

"I swear!" cried Rucker quickly, and he immediately felt the figure behind him slip to the ground.

"For God's sake, stop!" screamed Pink as Morely and Fent galloped up. "He stole me away, and now he's pitched me off his horse. Take me up, won't you?"

"Take her up, Fent," said Morely as they drew rein. "I've got to get Rucker."

Morely rode ahead, while Pink slowly mounted behind Fent.

"All right, there?" asked Fent.

"Hands up there!" growled Pink and placed a revolver against Fent's neck.

Fent was so shocked that he permitted himself to be relieved of all arms without a word of protest.

"Now, whip up," Pink said. "We've got to overhaul Morely."

Morely was a heavy man, mounted on a poor animal, and they came up with him just at dawn. Pink took careful aim and fired. Morely's right arm fell limply at his side.

"Get off and go over to him, Fent," Pink commanded. "Throw his gun away and get up behind him."

Having seen a sample of Pink's marksmanship, Fent thought it best to obey implicitly.

"Ride on, now," said Pink, "and don't forget that sudden death's right at your heels."

In this fashion Pink and his captives rode into Parrott. Rucker, true to his oath, had given himself up, and the whole town was wild with excitement. When the crowd caught sight of Pink's feminine attire, they expressed their delight in one long sustained yell, which lasted until he had disappeared within the jail.

"Look here!" Rucker called as soon as Pink neared his cell. "I reckon you know somethin about Pueblo Indian pottery, too, don't you?"

Pink allowed that he had given the subject a little study at one time.

"Young man," said Rucker spitefully, "you're too derned smart. I've no use for people like you. But, thank the Lord, no real woman ever did it!"

Rucker, nevertheless, by reason of Pink's mediation, received a very light sentence, while Fent and Morely ruined two good pieces of hemp rope.

THE THREE WHITE MEN AND THE DOZEN INDIANS OPENED FIRE.

"DIAMOND HANDLEBARS."

BY PERCIE W. HART.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

It takes something more than mere reckless courage to bring a runaway team of horses to a full stop without calling in the assistance of surgeon and hospital ambulance to complete the incident, and when the before mentioned feat is performed by an individual mounted upon a bicycle the thing is only a mere trifle short of miraculous.

Riverside drive, New York city, was in its usual crowded afternoon condition. Broughams and buckboards, cycles and grocery wagons, livery stable buggies and children's velocipedes and all the rest of it were striving to see how close they could pack to one another without knocking any of the glitter off. Now and then they were more or less unsuccessful, but the quick traveling procession never halted appreciably in its course. Suddenly a buzzing hum in the distance developed into a full fledged human roar of dismay, and the four wheeled vehicles drew well over to the curbs, hustling the cyclists unceremoniously upon the sidewalks. A somewhat narrow lane was thus formed in the center of the roadway and along it with the noisy accompaniment of four pairs of wildly galloping hoofs and the jangle of disheveled harness came a pair of maddened horses and what can only be compared to a flying streak of light. Just opposite to where I stood they all went into a wild, chaotic mass, with a rasplike scrunch that boded ill for the asphalt. I closed my eyes momentarily. I always was overfond of horses. When I looked again, I beheld the two runaways standing meekly side by side, with the streak of light (now materialized into a bicycle policeman standing alongside of his wheel) holding their heads and tenderly smoothing their silky manes.

I made up my mind to know that man. I also determined to lose no time about beginning the acquaintance. I reckoned that it was absolutely impossible for him to repeat such a performance again and come out of it lively enough to stand any reasonable show of being placed upon the department's pension list. And yet, strange to say, he has accomplished the identical thing so many times since that I have long given over keeping any track of the number.

As our acquaintance developed through the various stages of short conversations and mild cigars up to long confidences and strong drinks I was the delighted listener to any number of little romances and tragedies in wheeling circles which had come under the keen eyed "bike cop's" personal observation. Among them was the one in which Miss Diamond Handlebars played the part of heroine.

It should be understood that upon Broadway or any other of the leading pedestrian thoroughfares of our city the faces and people are almost kaleidoscopic in their changes and individualism rarely becomes prominent. But upon the cycling roads, such as Riverside drive or the Boulevard, a different order of things provides.

"We get to know all of them by sight at least," explained my friend the bike cop. "You see, they ride up and down regularly every fine day in the year and what with some peculiarities about their costume, faces or machines we soon have a nickname for each one. You ask any of the men in our squad if they can point out 'Mixed Pickles' or 'Mud Guards' or 'Rosie Bloomers' and I'll wager they'll know who you are talking about.

"One day a summer or two ago I was standing on the curb waiting for the roundsman to come along when a most demure young lady stepped up to me and asked the way to a certain bicycle riding school. Now, of course, that was not any unusual event to be strongly impressed upon my memory, but for some reason or other the sound of her voice kept ringing in my ears and I was very nearly caught off post by my sergeant through following along after her in order to see that she found the school all right.

"About the same hour upon the two following days she came along the sidewalk of my beat and gave me a most charming little nod of recognition upon each occasion. The fourth time I met her she was riding a wheel just as easily and gracefully as if she had been an old hand at the game. It was an ordinary enough looking machine, a good one, of course, though, for her people were well fixed, and her riding suit was not anything very much calculated to burst a chappie's eardrum. But it all came in the next few months—first, a silver plated bike and divided skirts, and then a gold mounted one, with fancy bloomers to match. That is about as far as most of them go, but it was only the beginning of the stretch for her. She must have laid awake nights thinking up new ideas in bicycle decoration, for scarcely a week went by but what you could see something new and brilliant about her outfit. Once she had a wheel with the whole frame overlaid in mother of pearl. Another time the spokes of both wheels were enameled in many brilliant colors, and the handle corks were trimmed with beautiful hand painted porcelain ends. But I couldn't begin to tell you all the changes she rung in in the way of both wheel and dress. When it came to having solid gold mountings with some sort of agates set in them put around various parts of the frame, we thought we could begin to see her finish. Anyway, it fixed her nickname for good and all among the squad as 'Diamond Handlebars.'

"IT WAS SCORCHING OF THE VERY SCORCHIEST SORT."

"She was one of the most enthusiastic cyclists that I have ever seen or heard about. From early morning till late at night, blow high, blow low, lamps lighted or not, punctures or no punctures, she rode her wheel incessantly. Many a time I've had to warn her about scorching and not ringing her bell, and the repair shops all counted upon about so many dollars' worth of her trade each month all the year round. She was a real out and out bicycle girl for keeps and all along the line, and if any one should ask you about it don't forget to mention it!"

And my friend the bike cop paused and sighed, as if vultures were assuredly gnawing at his vitals.

"I remember once," he continued, after a short pause, "when a whole crowd were riding along together, and one of the girls that we used to call 'foot prodders' asked 'Diamond Handlebars' if she thought she would ever get tired of bicycling! 'Tired of it?' she replied, with her eyes flashing and feet pedaling round like a whirlwind. 'Tired of it? Why, say, I expect to ride a wheel until I die or get too old to stay on one. Life would not be worth anything to me without my bike. If I live and have health and strength, you'll see me wheeling up and down the road for a good many years to come.' That's what she said. But you can never tell about these women.

"The boys all thought 'Diamond Handlebars' was about right, for she would just as soon do a century run as eat breakfast and always insisted upon taking her turn at the pacing with the best of them. And now comes the funny part of the whole thing!

"Out of all the ruck there were three fellows very badly gone on her. The first was a tall, thin, razor boned and dudelike individual, clerk in a down town bank, I believe. Anyway, we always called him the 'Living Toothpick.' The second was 'Ball Bearings,' a fat little German who insisted upon riding a machine about two sizes too big for him and then wondered why he could not climb hills with the rest. The third fellow was a regular learned chap, a professor in some college or other, so they said. He wore a pair of golf stockings that contained one more color than the rainbow, and we called him the 'Colored Supplement.' At first the race was pretty even for the bunch. You see, the 'Living Toothpick' rode with 'Diamond Handlebars' in the early mornings before he went to work. 'Ball Bearings' only came around in the afternoon and consequently did not know what was going on. The 'Colored Supplement' was the evening rider of the three and must certainly have thought he was the winning man. It used to beat all how that girl would ride out each of the main three in turn, not to speak of a couple of dozen extra ones that didn't count as regulars, and then turn up as fresh and smiling as ever for the next day's routine.

"Somehow or other it got about that they had all three proposed to her and that she had put them off and told them they were to have a definite answer upon the following Sunday morning. The party that told me about it had heard it from a girl chum of 'Diamond Handlebars,' and there was something or other said about a 'high old time.' Now, 'Diamond Handlebars' was so chuckful of bicycling that I made up my mind she would bring her favorite sport into the game in some fashion and the event proved that I was not mistaken in my wild guess. Just as I came on to my post at 6 o'clock in the morning of the Sunday in question who should I see but 'Diamond Handlebars,' the 'Living Toothpick,' 'Ball Bearings' and the 'Colored Supplement' spinning down the drive, all abreast and pedaling as if they were trying to break a world's record. It was scorching of the very scorchiest sort, and I started right in to have my share of the fun, for, although the drive is practically clear at that hour in the morning, I had my orders and felt bound to arrest the whole push. But, bless you, it was no common chase. The men never paid the slightest attention to me or my yells, and 'Diamond Handlebars' only kissed her hand as she turned in her saddle without slacking up the least mite and watched me pegging away after them. Something in her manner told me what was afoot—or perhaps in this case awheel would be better English. She was undoubtedly racing with them for a purpose. We all knew it positively a little later, but I felt certain about the matter even then. The one that could beat her down the drive was to be her chosen husband.

"I laughed to myself at her little scheme. It was so romantic and all that sort of thing, and yet what a lead pipe cinch for her. There was not one of the bunch who could really beat her if she did not want him to. I made up my mind to be in the finish at any rate, and so when 'Ball Bearings'' chain snapped in two and he stood on his head under one of the shade trees I kept right on the trail. A little farther on the 'Colored Supplement' stopped. He did it rather suddenly, too, for an ash can was in his way. To my surprise the 'Human Toothpick' kept well up with the girl. He had never been what you might call a fast rider, and the symmetry of his limbs gave poor promise of muscular development, but the length of reach perhaps made up for lack of power. At any rate, it was a close race, and I began to think that he might possibly march down the aisle with her. By this time I had got close up to them. I suppose that if I had made an extra effort I might have blocked the game, but the finish was so near that I hadn't the heart to interrupt. I saw 'Diamond Handlebars'' face for an instant, and if ever a girl looked frightened she most certainly did. I suppose she thought that she could enjoy all the romance and fun of the thing and then beat them all three and so keep her promise and yet get out of marrying any one of them. But there was the 'Human Toothpick' keeping exactly even with her and a smile of anticipatory victory commencing to illumine his face.

"Within a few hundred feet of the finish I could see 'Diamond Handlebars' pull herself together for a great effort. She bent nearly double over the wheel and started in to pedaling even faster than she had been doing. The 'Human Toothpick' answered her spurt in great style. She could not lose him. An inch, a foot, a whole yard, he led her. Not more than 20 feet at most intervened between them and the finish line when a sidebar buggy turned sharp into the drive from a cross street. They both ran plump and fair into it, and their wheels were knocked into fragments. Strange to say, neither one of them was badly injured, but the mean thing about it was that she married the chap who was driving that buggy inside of three months, and in spite of her talk the only wheeling I have ever seen her do since that morning two years ago has been to push a baby carriage."

Annuities.

The annuity companies require no medical examinations and do not hesitate to say that it is immaterial to them how soon the annuitant passes away. In Europe annuities are provided for younger sons, incompetents and as marriage portions, but little has been done in that direction in this country.

"As to the revenue derived from money placed with annuity concerns," said an actuary, "that depends on the age of the annuitant. There are certain established rates based on 3½ per cent interest. They differ as to age, sex and the frequency of payments. Thus those who receive their proceeds annually receive more than the annuitants who draw their interest quarterly or half yearly.

"Money deposited for an annuitant 45 years old will yield 6 per cent. The rate increases to 8 per cent when the beneficiary buys at 55 years. At 65 the rate is equal to 12 per cent; at 75 years, 17 per cent, and at 85 years, 22 per cent."—New York Tribune.

Partnership Dissolved.

Will H. Smith and his brother, Clyde Smith, who have been in the grocery business here for the past year under the firm name of W. H. Smith & Bro., have dissolved partnership. Clyde Smith, who is a tailor by trade, and who is Jacob Gross' right hand man, retires from the firm, his interest being purchased by his brother, Will, who will continue the business alone. Will is a hustling, energetic fellow who thoroughly understands the grocery business from beginning to end. He is honest and capable and you can be sure of getting your money's worth when you deal with him. He expects to keep always on hand a large and complete line of everything to be found in a first class grocery. All goods will be fresh and pure. Give him a call when in need of anything in his line.

—Th story going the rounds of the press in regard to the muster out of service of the Fifth regiment, has been authoritatively denied the Adjutant General Stewart in a letter to Colonel Burchfield. In it he says no regiments have been selected for muster out and before any are selected the various commanding officers will be consulted in regard to it. This will probably set the rumors at rest.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

The Grangers Banquet.

On Thursday of last week the Grangers of Howard district met in their hall at Howard and held their annual meeting for that district, quite a number from other organizations were present, among them being Col. Weaver of Milesburg, and Mr. Ebbs of Pine Grove. There were several good addresses delivered. The Grangers and their wives with their friends were present, and enjoyed a social day. At the noon hour the ladies had prepared a sumptuous repast, which went to show that the farmers wives were experts in the culinary art. After dinner the crowd was entertained by speeches and music, everybody seemed to enjoy themselves and wish that they may all meet again.—Howard Hustler.

A Pointer for Our Police.

It would be a good idea for the police of our town to put a stop to the nuisance created by certain young men who gather on our street corners and insult ladies when passing. Every noon at about the hour the young ladies employed at the shirt factory leave their work to go home for their dinner, there is a crowd of men gather at the corner by McCalmont's store and proceed to "rubber" and make annoying and insulting remarks as the young ladies pass. The police should put a stop to this and not allow people to be annoyed in this manner. If one of our police officers would make it his business to be in that vicinity at about the noon hour he could put a stop to it and thus render a good service to the community.

For State Y. M. C. A. Convention

Among the many speakers who will deliver addresses at the thirty second annual convention of the State Young Men's Christion Association of Pennsylvania to be held at Williamsport, February 22—25 will be T. S. McPheeters, of St. Louis, Mo., Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, of Brooklyn N. Y, and John R. Mott, college secretary of international committee of New York city. Some of the busiest business men of the state will be on the program and many others will be in attendance. Vigorous, progressive, christian young men are urgently requested to be present. Special railroad rates have been secured.

Suit Against a Saloon Keeper.

Saloonkeepers generally may be concerned over a suit for $10,000 damages against a liquor dealer in Pittsburg. The plaintiff was assaulted and badly injured in this saloon by the proprietor's son and a bystander, and the claim is made under an old supreme court ruling that the saloonkeeper is bound to protect a visitor or guest on the premises from assault. Large verdicts for damages are said to have been awarded by courts in other counties, sustained by the higher court's ruling in cases of this kind.

Interesting Will Case Decided.

Judge Stewart, of Chambersburg, quite recently decided a most important will case. Miss Lydia Wingert, of Antrim township, Franklin county, in her last will and testament bequeathed some $4,500 to various interests of the United Evangelical church. The will, however, was contested on the ground of mental incapacity and undue influences. The case was heard by a master a year ago. In his decision, Judge Stewart upholds the will.

—Mrs. Emma Lebkicker, of Wingate, Centre county, has been granted a widow's pension of three dollars per month.

Col. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Reeder Entertain in Honor of Mrs. John I. Roger and Miss Helen Henkle of Philadelphia.

Col. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Reeder entertained about fifty representatives of Bellefonte society at their north Allegheny street home Friday evening in honor of Mrs. John I. Roger and Miss Helen Henkle of Philadelphia. The entertainment was styled a "War Party" and the feature of the evenings pleasure was six handed progressive euchre played under strict military rules and regulations. Drum taps signalized the operation and progression of the various batteries engaged at the several forts as the eight tables comprising the field of action were designated, brilliant feats of daring and remarkable deeds of strategy marked the battle of the clans. About twelve o'clock hostilities ceased and rations of a choice and delectable character, were served to the victors and the vanquished alike. Dainty and appropriate prizes were bestowed upon the most successful combatants. The parlors and halls were artistically decorated with the National colors. The party fittingly concluded with patriotic songs and profuse compliments and thanks to Colonel and Mrs. Reeder for an enjoyable and delightful event.

Wedded at Lemont.

At Six o'clock Wednesday evening Jan. 17th, Mr. Norris Martz, formerly of State College, and Miss Etta Roan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roan at Lemont, were married at the bride's home at that place. Mr. Ed. McCalmont was best man, and Miss Hattie Martz, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Rev. Mr. Rhoads, pastor of the Lemont Evangelical church, married the couple. A company of forty-eight guests partook of an elegant supper. The couple received numerous presents, and a two-horse wagon load of calithumpians from Rock View made their happiness complete by giving them a royal serenade,

On Thursday Mr. Martz's mother, who resides at State College, gave a reception dinner to twelve couple, after which the bride and groom left for a wedding trip of a week's duration in Philadelphia. After the honey-moon they expect to take up their residence at Juniata where Mr. Martz is employed in the car shops.

Whisky Medicines.

The temperance press is emphasizing the danger to the home in the use of "medicines" which are loaded with whisky or alcohol. In this respect, as well as in the remarkable character of their cures, Dr. Pierce's medicines differ from other preparations. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Favorite Prescription" contain no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and are equally free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics. Every family should have a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent absolutely free, on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fire Near Williamsport.

The handsome residence of Charles R. Harris, at Vallamont, near Williamsport was entirely destroyed by fire Thursday night. Mr. Harris was about retiring when he saw the flames bursting through the registers from the furnace in the cellar. He aroused the members of the family and servants. They all made their escape through the second story window, over the roof of the porch, from which they jumped to the ground. The flames spread so rapidly that only a few articles were saved. The loss on building and contents will be about $50,000, partially insured. Mr. Harris will rebuild. The fire started from an overheated furnace.

—The Altoona Gazette has a libel suit on hand the damages asked amounting to $16,620.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

SHIP THAT BORE NAPOLEON FROM ELBA A WRECK.

Below the waters of Monterey Bay, California, lies a sunken craft that once helped make history. She is the Natane, which in 1815 carried Napoleon back to France from Elba, and set the kings of all Europe trembling again upon their thrones.

The brigantine inconstant, as she was then called, was selected because of her swiftness to carry Napoleon back to France. From the 22d the 25th of February, 1815, she cruised on and off Elba watching for a signal. On the night of the 22th a beacon light burned on the shore. An hour later Napoleon was on deck. Three days later he landed at Cannes.

What happened to Napoleon, his triumphal progress through France, the night of the Bourbons, the Hundred Days, Waterloo, every one knows.

In 1843, her name changed to the Natalie, she was doing service as a customs cruiser for the Mexican Government, according to the story told by Capt. Lambert, of Monterey, Cal.

Discipline in the Mexican service was lax; when the officers were well away all the sailors went ashore leaving the Natalie in gathering storm and fog to look out for herself.

When the morning broke not a spar of the Natalie was left above water.

GIRL RUNS A SAWMILL.

Amelia Judson, graduate of Cornell, runs a sawmill in the heart of the Williams Mountain in Arizona, and runs it well. She can drive a logging team or run a buzz saw if necessary, but doesn't have to do either. She hires men to do that.

The Judson Mills, where trees are cut up into boards and these made up on the spot into boxes, were founded by Andrew B. Judson, Amelia Judson's brother. He made a good business start, and was rapidly working up the business of supplying boxes for the California fruit trade, but had saved nothing as a reserve fund, when last year he died of typhoid fever.

There were pressing contracts on hand to fill. Forest land was yet to be paid for out of the sale of boxes. If the business stopped or even ceased for a few months Miss Judson and her mother would be penniless. It could not be sold quickly. Miss Judson resolved to carry it on herself.

She put on her old clothes and went up into the hills. She went over every acre of lumber land her brother had bought, studied every detail of the business. It has grown upon her hands. To-day her contracts are said to be as big as those of any two other firms in Arizona combined.

Peculiarities of Colored Children.

Colored children are much more sensitive to heat than white children which probably means that their power of discrimination is much better, and not that they suffer more from heat. Colored girls have larger circumference of head at all ages than white girls. White children not only have a greater standing height than colored children, but their sitting height is still greater yet colored children have a greater weight than white children—that is white children, relatively to their height, are longer bodied than colored children. The percentage of long headedness (dolicocephaly) among colored boys is more than double that of white boys. This may be due to racial influence.—Journal American Medical Association.

Fictions About Bayonet Charges and Bayonet Wounds

Some of the stories about bayonet charges and bayonet wounds coming from the battlefields of South Africa which appear to be taken seriously by civilians, are sharply humorous to those acquainted with the actual experiences of war. In the "Medical and Surgical History of the War of the Rebellion" we find this statement under the head of "Flesh Wounds of the Upper Extremities."

"Over 50,000 cases, or about a fifth of all the wounded reported by name, were returned as shot flesh wounds of the upper extremities There were sixty-nine examples of bayonet wounds of the fleshy parts of the arm, or forearm, or hand, and forty-four cases of similar injuries by other pointed weapons. There were eighty instances of sabre cuts of the upper extremities."

This is in the proportion of a little more than one-hundredth of 1 per cent, of bayonet wounds or 725 shot wounds to one bayonet wound. As a bayonet wound is more likely to be in the upper extremities than in any other portion of the body, it is apparent that the proportion of the whole number of bayonet wounds would be no greater. Nor is it at all likely that the proportion can be any greater where the modern weapons with their long range still more widely separate the fighting lines. It is strange then, that we should have small respect for the English newepaper accounts of the behavior of the British soldier in battle when we find them filled with reports of bayonet encounters?

["My Life Despaired of."

These are words of Mrs. Wm. Burton of Dartmore, Ont., after doctors had prescribed and she had taken every known heart remedy. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart gave relief in almost shorter time than it takes to tell it—it worked a wonderful cure in a case of long standing, and to-day she says: "I am a well woman." Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart has no case recorded against it where it did not give relief inside of 30 minutes.—56.

"Silencing a Gun."

There is a great deal of ignorance as to what "silencing a gun" means. A gun is silenced when the gunners are disabled or driven back and the gun or guncarriage damaged. It is a common enough phenomenon for weapons whic have thus been silenced to reopen fire after repairs have been made, the gunners rallied, or a fresh gun crew obtained. It is a rare thing for a gun to be so damaged by hostile fire that it cannot be refitted and brought into action again. "I saw," says Prince Kraft, of the German artillery in the battle of Gravelotte, "many guns during the cannonade lying miserably on the ground 'winged,' that is, with a broken wheel. But not one was withdrawn; the injured guns were always speedily repaired with the help of the wagons which were near, so that at the close of the battle I could not tell exactly how many pieces had been put temporarily out of action." The Navy League Journal of London says this expert opinion should put a stop to ignorant witticisms on the frequent silencing as Ladysmith of "Long Tom," as the biggest of the Boer guns was called. The navy had day after day to look after this weapon and does it with lyddite shells, but on each occasion the work was skilfully done.

Curious Funeral Custom.

In Switzerland death is attended by a custom which calls upon all charitable and Christian people to show their sympathy. A notice edged with a wide black line appears in the daily papers setting forth the day and hour when sympathizers must assemble before the house of the deceased. At the time named a little cloth covered table, supporting a good sized jar, is stood before the house, table, cloth and jar all being of a somber, ebony hue, and into the latter small mourning cards bearing the name and address of their owners, are deposited. The day the funeral takes place is the day selected for the exhibition of the jar. No ladies are allowed to follow at a Swiss funeral.

A Unique Notice.

The following is a copy of a unique notice affixed to the church door at Whitechurch, London: "Missing, last Sunday, some families from church Stolen, several hours from the Lord's day, by a number of people of different ages, dressed in their Sunday clothes."

There are many reason why you should take Morrow's Kid-ne-oids in preference to any other kidney preparation. First, Kid-ne-oids are a scientific preparation. Second, They are Tablets, which is the scientific form of preparing medicine. Third, There are never any bad after-effects from their use. Fourth, They act directly upon the kidneys, they are strictly a kidney cure and nerve tonic. Fifth, You do not have to quit work while using Kid-ne-oids. A fifty-cent box contains enough for about two weeks' treatment. People use Kid-ne-oids because they cure kidney ailments.

Mr. W. H. Klepper, teacher in the Third Ward school, 659 Bellefonte street, Lock Haven, Pa., says: "For some time I have been annoyed by a constant dull pain in the small of my back. I took Morrow's Kid-ne-oids as they were recommended to cure kidney troubles. From the use of Kid-ne-oids I have had gratifying results, as they relieved the distressing pain in a very short time."

Morrow's Kid ne-oids are not pills but Yellow Tablets and sell at fifty cents a box at all drug stores and at F. Potts Green's drug store.

—About 9 months ago Levi B. Nearhoof, farmer, of Warriorsmark valley, had a valuable steer bitten by a mad dog. On Monday of this week the steer died with a well developed case of rabbies. At the time the steer was attacked by the dog several other animals (dogs and cattle) in the neighborhood were bitten by the same dog. All of these died of hydrophobia, the symptoms developing between nine or ten days after the assault. The dog that committed the mischief was a strange one and was shortly after killed.

—Judge White, of Allegheny county, has been saying some true things lately concerning intoxicating liquors that need to be widely circulated. He declared that the beer produced in this country makes brutes out of those who drink it. More crime results from beer drinking, the court said, than from the use of any other liquor. It is better to drink whiskey than beer, continued the judge. There are many persons in the United States who firmly believe, although there is a complete lack of evidence, that the use of beer is perfectly harmless, but the fact is that more damage comes from beer drinking than from the use of the stronger beverage, whiskey. Examine the record of the worst drunkard you ever knew, and see if beer did not have much to do with his degradation.

Danger Signals!

Do you take cold with every change in the weather? Does your throat feel raw? And do sharp pains dart through your chest?

Don't you know these are danger signals which point to pneumonia, bronchitis, or consumption itself?

If you are ailing and have lost flesh lately, they are certainly danger signals. The question for you to decide is, "Have I the vitality to throw off these diseases?"

Don't wait to try SCOTT'S EMULSION "as a last resort." There is no remedy equal to it for fortifying the system. Prevention is easy.

Scott's Emulsion

prevents consumption and hosts of other diseases which attack the weak and those with poor blood.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is the one standard remedy for inflamed throats and lungs, for colds, bronchitis and consumption. It is a food medicine of remarkable power. A food, because it nourishes the body; and a medicine, because it corrects diseased conditions.

REPUBLICANS ATTENTION.

Party Primaries to be Held Friday Evening January 26th.

The Republican Boro primaries will be held tomorrow Friday evening January 26th. between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock Candidates for Boro Treasurer, Burgess, Tax Collector, Poor Overseer, Auditor, 3 for Councilmen, 3 for School Directors, 3 for Judges of Election and 3 for Inspectors are to be chosen. Good men are wanted for these positions, but good men will not be selected unless the voters go to the polls and exercise their right in choosing the men.

The neglect to attend the primaries by the greater number of voters has become so common, that it is now a great drawback to securing good government. It has become too common a practice for the selection of candidates to be made by a few men. This deplorable practice is more chargeable to the voters who remain away from the primaries than to the few who attend. Very often the men who have been too indifferent to attend the primaries, profess to be disgusted with the men who have been named, when if the voters generally would have been at the polls to express their choice, a different set of candidates would appear on the ticket. It is a poor time to "kick" after the men have been selected.

Therefore for these reasons, Republicans attend your party caucuses Friday evening and express your choice for the candidates. The following notices were handed us for publication by the different ward chairman:

NORTH WARD REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES.

Pursuant to a call issued by Republican county chairman W. F. Reeder, the Republican voters of the North Ward of Bellefonte boro are requested to meet in voting place in the Public building on Howard street, Friday evening, January 26th for the purpose of holding a party caucus to nominate candidates for ward and boro offices to be voted for at the coming Spring election, The hours for holding the caucus are from 7 until 9 o'clock.

A Moody Memorial Meeting.

An interesting meeting was held in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening in memory of the lamented evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, who recently passed away at his home in Northfield, Mass. Mr. Moody was personally known to many of our citizens and it was at his school at Northfield, that Hugh Beaver did his last work for the Master. For this reason a greater interest was taken in this tribute to his memory, and the large church edifice was filled with an attentive audience.

Gen. James A. Beaver presided over the meeting and also made an eloquent address in which he paid a touching tribute to the great evangelist. Other excellent addresses were made by Ellis L. Orvis, Esq., and J. W. Gephart. Many interesting incidents were told of Moody's life work and the meeting proved a very profitable one indeed.

Married at Clearfield.

On Saturday evening December 30th 1899 at 7 o'clock John Sourbeck Jr., of this place, and Miss Emma Curtin, of Tyrone, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock at the Catholic parsonage in Clearfield. The ceremony which united this happy young couple for life was performed by Rev. Father Mackinaw of that place. The only witnesses present were the two cousins of the bride.

The groom is employed in his fathers store in this place and is an industrious young man while the bride is a very pretty and attractive young lady who has quite a number of friends and acquaintances in this place. They expect to go to housekeeping here in the Spring.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. J. Zeigler, whose maiden name was Susan Kutz, was born in Cumberland County, Pa., March 18th, 1840; died at her home in Snow Shoe Intersection, Centre County, Pa., January 12th. 1900. In early life she became a Christian and united with the Evangelical Association in which relation she remained until after her marriage with J. Zeigler December 23d, 1862. Soon after they removed to Maryland, where, with her husband, she united with the M. E. Church South. After returning to Pennsylvania, and her husband uniting with Messiah Conference, she endorsed the faith of Evangelical Adventists and was baptized, in which faith she continued until the day of her death.

During Mrs. Zeigler's long illness, being afflicted with cancer, she was a great sufferer, but bore her affliction with marked patience and Christian submission.

When physically able she read much, not only in the Book of books but such works as "Abiding in Christ," by Rev. Andrew Murray; D. L. Moody's sermons in Colporterage series, and "The Watch word and Truth." From such excellent Christian literature she received great comfort and spiritual strength.

All who knew Mrs. Zeigler recognized her noble disposition, she was a true wife and earnest Christian, one who had great respect for and loyalty to the truth. She had a great many friends and a few enemies; the latter she fully and truly forgave for their ill treatment to her. She longed and prayed for the time of her departure, retaining full consciousness almost to the last hour.

Deceased was for several years past a member of the Milesburg Baptist Woman's Missionary Circle and was always careful and prompt in the payment of her yearly subscription to the Missionary fund. (Her husband intends that these annual contributions shall be continued while he lives.)

Rev. J. Zeigler, the surviving faithful husband, who for the past thirty years has been instant in season and out of season, travelling over two or three townships in Centre Co., Pa., literally going everywhere preaching the Word of Life, is left to mourn the loss of a true helpmeet, but he mourns not as those who have no hope. For nearly forty years they were permitted to work together in the Master's vineyard, and now the faithful wife and child of God rests from her labors and waits in hope of complete redemption "When the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

The body was laid to rest in the Messiah Church cemetery Monday, January 15th. The funeral discourse, which was full of comfort, was delivered by Rev. M. L. Jackson, of Snow Shoe; text, latter clause of Philippians 1 : 23, "Which is far better." E. C. HOUCK.

It is but justly due the writer of the above obituary, as well as telling the whole story, that the services at the late residence of deceased, as well as at the Evangelical church the use of which the trustees freely granted, were conducted by him and that he delivered an excellent discourse on the word of Jeremiah, Lam. 3 : 24, "The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in Him." A very large audience collected at this place to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed one. ZEIGLER.

The Concert Tuesday Night.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. presented to the music loving people of our town and county, a rare treat in the "Ithaca Conservatory of Music Concert Company" which appeared at the Court House Tuesday evening and highly entertained a crowded house of our best and most highly cultivated people. The performance was perfect and the audience showed their appreciation of the artists efforts by continuous rounds of applause. This is the first of a series of entertainments to be given by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. the proceeds of which are to be given to the erection of a memorial Hall, to the late Miss Marion W. Petrikin on the lot of ground presented to the organization by her.

This is a worthy object and should receive the cordial support of all lovers of humanity and progress, and the improvement and betterment of our people. That the entertainments will be worthy of support on their own merit goes without saying as these ladies have always offered first class entertainments to our people, that they are under the auspices of the organization is always a guarantee that the most fastidious can attend with no fear of a shock. We hope that each succeeding concert will be as well patronized as was the excellent one of Tuesday night and we shall have the satisfaction not only of an entertainment worth the money, but also of helping along a most worthy enterprise,

H. H. Harshberger Esq., for Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Harshberger is a good man and would make a strong candidate and a splendid official.

Centre County Farmers Hunting Wild Cattle.

The farmers of Nittany and Brush valleys, in Centre county, engaged in a regular cattle hunt. Over one hundred fine animals escaped from their herds while grazing last summer, and are running wild around Nittany mountain. The cattle are wary as deer, and hunters have been unable to get within half a mile of them. During the past week the farmers tried the experiment of a general roundup of the stock. Fully one hundred men mounted and on foot, surrounded the herd, but even then could not get them out of the woods. Lassoing was then resorted to, and in this way four were caught. Persons who were in the chase declare that the stock is as wild as the wildest of cattle on the western plains.

DEATH OF THOMAS G. HUTCHISON.

Was a Prominent and Highly Esteemed Citizen of Philipsburg.

Thomas G. Hutchison, for many years a good citizen of Philipsburg, died Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, after an illness of more than a year, from heart disease.

Mr. Hutchinson was born on Feb. 27, 1839, at Lewisburg, Pa. At the age of 17 years he became a resident of State College where he resided until the war broke out, when he enlisted in Co. D. Forty-Ninth Pennsylvania Vol. Infty. He served in the army for three years and two months and was honorably discharged from service. Mr. Hutchison at this time located at Chester, Delaware county, and remained there until 1871, when he came to Philipsburg. He stayed two years here and then went back to Chester, where he married Miss Eden Haworth, of that town. With his bride he came to Philipsburg again in 1874. In 1877 the family moved to Nuttallsburg, West Virginia, and after a residence there of three years returned to Philipsburg and have resided here ever since.

Mr. Hutchison is survived by his wife and one son and two daughters. Chester F. and Miss Ida resides at home and the other daughter, Inez, who is the wife of Frank Humphrey, also resides in Philipsburg. Mr. Hutchison was a member of John W. Geary Post, No. 90, G. A. R., which organization had charge of the funeral which took place Tuesday afternoon.
